This Week—

BY M. I. N. I.

Official Washington was pleased this week to welcome General John J. Pershing, General of the Armies, who has returned from the West for a few weeks stay. Appearing vigorous and healthy, the General immediately went to his office to clear up his work. It's good to see you back, General.

Decision of Representative Parks not to run for reelection next Fall is deplored by the Service. Judge Parks, aided by both the Democratic and Republican members of this subcommittee on War Department Appropriations, has contributed materially to National Defense. His constituents should be proud of him.

Mr. William Green, the president of the American Federation of Labor, made a splendid address at Secretary Woodring's dinner for those interested in the National Rifle Matches. The men and women in the labor organizations, he asserted, appreciate and want adequate national defense.

Despite previous information Maj. Gen. Hugh Matthews is eligible for selection to be major general commandant of the United States Marine Corps. His elevation to the post next Fall would be welcomed by the corps and the country.

Putting the Los Angeles back into active commission, as recommended by the House Naval Affairs Committee upon the advice of Dr. Eckener, would at least give us that much to work on. But in addition funds should be made available to construct another. This would afford experience in lighter-than-air construction as well as operation.

The Sixth Corps Area gets another commander. Brig. Gen. Charles Herron, who had been acting commander following the relief of Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood has left for a short leave of absence and Brig. Gen. Dana T. Merrill has assumed temporary command. It may not be long before a commander is regularly assigned there where the important field maneuvers are to be conducted late this Summer.

While 3,500 spectators looked on our newest submarine, the USS Perch slid down the ways at the yards of the Electric Boat Company at Groton, Conn., last Saturday. Lt. G. C. Crawford, USN, will take command when the vessel is completed.

Edmund S. Lowe, movie actor whose portrayal of Sgt. Quirt in "What Price Glory" associated him in the fans' minds with the service, is now a full-fledged Marine. He has been commissioned a captain in the volunteer Marine Reserve.

GHQ Air Force Given Control Over Bases

As the result of studies based on the 1935 test of the organization of the General Headquarters Air Force orders were issued this week strengthening and perfecting its organization.

A most important feature of the new set-up is that it removes from the command of Corps Area Commanders all stations at which units of the GHQ Air Force, not detached therefrom, are permanently stationed and places such stations under the direct control of the Air Force commander, through his Wing Commanders.

It will be recalled that this dual control of the stations was the source of considerable comment in the first report of the Air Force commander made to the Adjutant General last Fall. By giving the Force Commander control of these stations the objections voiced at that time appear to be overcome.

The new organization makes a long stride toward setting up the Force Commander as virtually an "Air Corps Area Commander" with his domain all the Air combat stations in the United States.

The text of the new instructions follows:

1. Effective July 1, 1936, the instructions contained in letter of the War Department (AG 320.2 12-19-34, Misc., Ret-C), dated December 31, 1934, subject: "General Headquarters—Air Force," are rescinded and the following substituted therefor.

2. A revised station list of GHQ Air Force units and an announcement of the details of organization of GHQ Air Force combat and base units will be issued in the near future.

3. The Commanding General, GHQ Air Force, will:

a. Through the respective Wing Commanders, command all units of the GHQ Air Force, not specifically detached, and in time of peace all stations at which units of the GHQ Air Force, not detached therefrom, are permanently stationed. These stations will be exempted from command of the respective Corps Area Commanders as prescribed in paragraph 4-b, Changes No. 3, AR 170-10, January 30, 1931.

b. Be responsible under the Chief of Staff in peace and under the appropriate commander in war for the instruction, training, maneuvers and tactical employment of all elements of his command.

c. Subject to the approval of the Chief of Staff and in cooperation with the Corps Area Commanders as they may affect other arms, prepare the training programs for his command.

d. Make regular visits to his units to observe their condition with regard to all matters affecting the efficiency of personnel, organization, training and equipment.

e. Pursuant to approved training programs and within the funds made available for said purposes, order training exercises of the units and personnel of his command.

f. Take the necessary corrective action where efficiency is found below standard and make suitable recommendations to the Adjutant General when action of higher authority is required.

g. Although not charged with any duties pertaining to the mechanics of supply, perform the necessary duties in connection with the preparation of plans of supply and take cognizance of supplies obtained in accordance with AR 35-6540 and such additional instructions.

Enlisted Disability Retirement

Negotiations are underway between the War Department and the Veterans Administration looking toward a plan whereby enlisted men with long service may be protected against discharge for physical disability upon an inadequate pension.

During the recent hearings before the House Military Affairs Committee on legislation for the betterment of enlisted personnel, many of the non-commissioned officers called before that body urged that provision be made for retirement of men of long service who become disabled in line of duty. They pointed out that considerable hardship occurs in cases of men who have served for many years in the Army and therefore not fitted for many lines of work in civilian life, become partially disabled. They must be discharged from the service or refused reenlistment, and getting no benefit for their many years in the Service are

Army Reserve Training, 1937

Present projects for the Army Reserve Corps for 1937 are that approximately one out of every three assignable officers will be given some form of active duty during the fiscal year.

The number to be given active military training will be larger than any year since the establishment of the Corps. Funds are provided in the War Department appropriation bill for training approximately 22,900 officers. Of this total approximately 21,300 will be given 14 day active duty details, 1,000 will be given a year's active duty under the provisions of the Thompson Act; 300 will be given extended active duty details at general and special service schools, and 300 will be given extended active duty with the Air Corps.

In addition there will be approximately 7,500 on active duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps. While this is not considered military training it brings the total of officers to be given active duty to 30,400 officers.

The Army Appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1936 provided enough funds to train approximately 20,000 reserve officers for 14 days during the summer months at reserve officers camps. Actually by careful handling of the funds the appropriation was spread out to take care of 20,000. The appropriation for the fiscal year 1937 provides an additional $100,000 which is expected to train approximately 21,300, the largest number of reserve officers ever so trained in one year. Two years ago the appropriation provided enough to train only 16,785 officers. Therefore, this year nearly 5,000 more reserve officers will receive this training than did in 1935.

In addition to this 50 Air Corps reserve officers will be taken into the Regular Army, also it is quite likely that the law authorizing five year duty details for 1,350 Air Reserve Officers will be enacted.

The ROTC appropriation of 1937 will be $4,558,846, an increase of $133,542 over last year, and the CMTC appropriation will be $2,275,000.

House Group Forsees Navy Selection Study

Plans for a congressional review next Winter of laws and policies governing personnel and administration in the Navy were discussed this week by the House Naval Affairs Committee.

Members of the committee are awaiting with much interest the outcome of the investigation of selection now being made by the General Board and are hopeful that out of that study may come a satisfactory solution of the Navy's personnel troubles which may make any broad congressional investigation of the problem unnecessary. Whether initiated at the Navy Department or on Capitol Hill, it seems certain at this writing that there will be Congressional consideration of the personnel question and of the administrative organization of the Department at the next session.

That the personnel question is uppermost in the minds of legislators charged with consideration of naval problems is indicated not only by the discussion in the House Naval Committee this week and earlier in the House subcommittee on naval appropriations, but also by a statement of the new chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts. Commenting on naval problems and possible future congressional activity, Senator Walsh expressed concern over the mounting retired list and declared that he hoped that the General Board would find some way to prevent the elimination of capable officers.

At a meeting of the House Naval Committee, May 14, during a discussion of future committee plans, Representative Melvin Maas, Rep. of Minn., asked Chairman Carl Vinson if he intended to reintroduce and press in the next Congress his bill to reorganize the administration of the Navy Department. Mr. Vinson about two years ago drafted legislation providing drastic changes in the organization of the Department. Action on the bill was forestalled by the appointment of the so-called Roosevelt reorganization board composed of officers of the Line and Staff and headed by the late Col. Henry L. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Only a few changes were recommended by the board and the only important proposals have either never been put into effect or since made ineffective. Faced with Navy opposition to his plan, Representative Vinson did not press it further at that time.

"I believe that my reorganization bill should have been passed long ago," the Georgian said in answer to Representative Maas' question. "It would have been, but there is so much opposition from the Department bureaus which might be curtailed that it has seemed almost impossible to get anywhere."

"I think that we should go into not only the reorganization problem, but the whole question of personnel, including selection, at the next Congress," Representative Maas declared. "I have two bills which the committee has agreed to consider regarding tours of duty in Washington and preventing

Editors Discuss Various Phases of Mussolini's Conquest of Ethiopia

Italian troops completed the conquest of Ethiopia recently when they captured the capital city of Addis Ababa. Last Saturday Mussolini decreed sovereignty over Ethiopia and proclaimed King Victor Emmanuel to be Emperor of this primitive land. Just what affect this will have on the peace of Europe and the League of Nations remains to be seen. This week editors of the nation discuss nearly every phase of the Ethiopian conquest.

"While the collapse of the Ethiopian defense before the steady advance of the Romans presages the early end of the military phase of Mussolini's African campaign, it does not mean that Ethiopia will be removed as a danger spot in European affairs," says the Atlanta, Ga., Constitution.

"Instead, it brings to a head the question of just what Mussolini means to do with his newly conquered territory and how his plans will be received by Great Britain and France—particularly the former."

"The flight of Haile Selassie," comments the Manchester, N. H., Union, "has changed the entire picture in Ethiopia. Prior to the exit of the negus, it was expected that the Italians would take Addis Ababa, but it was not assumed that this would be the end of the war. As yet the invaders have occupied less than one-quarter of the country, which leaves ample opportunity for the defenders to withdraw into the wilder and more inhospitable sections and keep up a guerrilla warfare for some time. From the beginning Haile Selassie has declared that this was what he would do. Such a move might be only a forlorn hope, but it would have the advantage of delaying the issue and giving time for European statesmen to bring further pressure on Italy."

The Philadelphia Inquirer believes that "the ultimate results are still a matter of surmise. Great Britain took the lead in the imposition of sanctions, and her failure to make them work puts the Government in an unenviable position, with political consequences both at home and abroad that can not yet be estimated. Any reform of the League will be rather belated. First Mussolini and then Hitler has defied the public law of Europe successfully. Nor can the members of the League be absolved from all responsibility. Their only chance of success lay in prompt and decisive action, and this was lacking."

"Another world war may not have been brought nearer. But certainly dictatorship has suffered no reverse. The problem for European statesmanship to face has been made more difficult than ever."

"Seated on his throne in an atmosphere of oriental splendor the emperor was perhaps the last of the great savage chieftains," states the Portland, Vt., Herald.

"Grand-nephew of Menelik, whose black warriors defeated the Italians at Adowa, Selassie no doubt suffered from delusions of grandeur but within his lights and powers he planned a liberal and progressive future for Ethiopia but did not count on mechanized warfare and the disloyalty or lukewarm attitude of many of his followers."

"There is an old American tradition," says the New York Herald Tribune, "which expects to find marines, at least a few of them, on hand to take charge when American lives are in danger. They will be all the more disturbed by the news from Addis Ababa which revealed a plucky American Minister defending his embassy without benefit of armed forces, to the peril of himself, his family and his staff."

"An American embassy is, after all, American soil. Why not protect it? The Roosevelt administration is hauling down the American flag in the Philippines and in Puerto Rico. Is it going to add American embassies to the list?"

The Brooklyn Eagle thinks that Mussolini's "African adventure is really not of great importance. What is happening in Addis Ababa is insignificant as compared with the French election, for example, or Hitler's new watch on the Rhine. The most appalling fact regarding the conquest of Ethiopia is that Mussolini should have been able in advance so accurately to judge the weakness of the other European powers and to have shrewdly calculated that he could work his way in Africa without serious consequences."

"To be sure, the Japanese showed him how when they invaded Chinese territory and captured Manchuria without interference from the other powers. But Ethiopia is nearer the heart of Western civilization and the risk seemed greater. Nevertheless, Mussolini took a chance and won. At what cost we cannot now tell. Italian soldiers and aircraft have done far better than was expected and their successes have been impressive. But the measure of their victory cannot be taken until the cost to the Italian people at home has been counted."

"The job of conquering Ethiopia and converting it into an Italian colony, consists of much more than the taking of the capital city plus a large area of arid land," comments the Durham, N. C., Herald. "Nor is the remaining task made easier by the surrender of Emperor Selassie. There are yet to be reckoned with Ethiopians with a leaning toward their kind of fighting and the Ethiopian climate that is not conducive to white-man habitation, not to mention the involved question of British and League of Nations prestige."

tion as may be issued from time to time by the chiefs of supply branches.

h. Advise the Corps Area Commander concerned and the Chief of the Air Corps of any contemplated movements of units of the GHQ Air Force and as to any increases or decreases in the strength of the force at any station in order that a proper and economical distribution of supplies and services may be effected.

i. Perform such duties in connection with the preparation of plans for the Theatre of Operations as the Chief of Staff may direct.

j. Prepare the GHQ Air Force mobilization plan required as an annex to each specific war plan.

k. Furnish to the Chief of the Air Corps data as may be called for, for use in connection with the preparation of the Air Corps Branch Mobilization Plan required as a part of the War Department General Mobilization Plan, and Air Corps branch annexes to all specific war plans.

l. Conduct Air Reserve Training at Air Force Posts under the same system and control as has heretofore been exercised in their conduct at stations exempted from Corps Area control.

4. Correspondence.

a. The Commanding General, GHQ Air Force, is authorized to communicate directly with the Corps Area Commanders concerned on all matters of administration and routine supply and with the Chief of the Air Corps on all matters of Air Corps technical supply and maintenance.

b. Correspondence with reference to the courts martial of, or disciplinary action affecting, officers of the GHQ Air Force will be routed by the station commander through the Commanding General, GHQ Air Force, to the related Corps Area Commander.

c. Correspondence between the Commanding General, GHQ Air Force, and the War Department, will be through The Adjutant General (paragraph 21-a, AR 340-15).

5. The duties of the Chief of the Air Corps will be as prescribed in paragraph 3, AR 75-5, April 21, 1930, and AR 70-5, April 29, 1927.

6. This directive is based on the results of the 1935 test of the organization of the GHQ Air Force in accordance with the letter referred to in paragraph 1. A further report, with appropriate recommendation, will be submitted on or before May 1, 1937, by all Corps Area Commanders, the Chief of the Air Corps, and the Commanding General, GHQ Air Force.

7. All orders or instructions regarding the organization of the GHQ Air Force heretofore issued and which may be in conflict with the provisions of this letter of instructions are hereby rescinded.

Air Corps Personnel Bill

The Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday voted to report favorably the Air Corps personnel bill, amended in several respects. The bill, already passed by the House, gives authority for 1,350 air reserve officers on active duty, redefining the term "flying officer," and revises the laws governing temporary advanced rank in the Air Corps.

One amendment subjects temporary advanced rank appointments to confirmation by the Senate.

The other committee amendments of the War Department measure are for the most part clarifying. One would specify that the temporary advanced promotions could be vacated at any time upon recommendation of the Secretary of War. Another specifies that the appointment to brigadier general and major general for command of the GHQ Air Force and Wing Commanders thereof would carry temporary rank and that the President rather than the Secretary of War may decide the number of Wing Commanders with rank of brigadier general which may be appointed. The only other amendment provides that officers appointed brigadier and major general under the act "shall hold such temporary appointment until relieved from such command by order of the President."

The sections redefining the term "flying officer" and authorizing the assignment of 1,350 air reserve officers to five-year active tours virtually were unaltered.

Naval Reserve Legislation

Legislation now being drafted by the Bureau of Navigation for presentation to the next Congress dealing with the Naval Reserve will contain many phases of the plan advocated by the Naval Reserve Officers Association. It is understood, with an agreement on legislation for betterment of the Reserve looked for early next winter.

Representative Melvin Maas, Rep. of Minn., who has been sponsoring the Reserve Officers Association's viewpoint during Naval Reserve hearings this session, told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that he expected a satisfactory settlement of the situation early next Congress.

"Indications from officers in charge of the Naval Reserve are that they are now writing new legislation involving drastic changes over existing legislation and over the plan presented to this Congress," he said. "I have been assured that representatives of the Navy Department will consult with me before submitting proposed new legislation to Congress."

Rep. James Resigns

Former Representative W. Frank James, of Michigan, has resigned his post as special investigator for the House Military Affairs Committee's subcommittee. It was learned this week, Mr. James, former chairman of the committee, probably will run for his old seat in Congress, it is understood.

Benefits for Reserves

A new basic act governing hospitalization of members of the reserve component injured or contracting disease while on active duty would be provided under the terms of a bill reported by the House Military Committee this week.

The bill, S. 3334, sponsored by the War Department and already passed by the Senate is designed to correct certain inequities which have grown up as the result of adverse construction of the present act by the Comptroller General and other desired changes. The bill provides the following changes over existing law: (1) extends benefits of the present legislation to officers of the National Guard of the United States; (2) Provides that pay and allowances may be continued during hospitalization for a period not to exceed six months from the end of the period for which ordered to active duty, instead of six months from date of injury (3) Would allow pay and allowances during a period of rehospitalization, transportation incident to rehospitalization (4) Benefits are extended to members of the ROTC and CMTC who contract disease in line of duty, the present law giving them benefits in case of injury only. (5) removes the $100 limit on burial expenses.

The House committee amended the bill at the request of the Comptroller General striking out proposed authority for the Secretary of War to make determinations of fact in regard to matters arising under the act. The Comptroller, in his letter to the committee, severely criticized the War Department stating "The bill * * * is an illustration of the persistence of that Department to secure the consent of Congress to avoid proper accounting for the uses of public money."

Report Arsenal Bill

The Senate Military Committee yesterday voted to report HR 10849, authorizing construction at Edgewood Arsenal and Allamano, T. H.

Md. Guardsmen Celebrate

The sixty-ninth anniversary of the reorganization of the Fifth Regiment Maryland National Guard, and the forty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the Veteran's Corps of the regiment were observed Monday night, May 11, in Baltimore, Md. There was a dress parade, unveiling of portraits, awarding of medals and review and military ball at the organization's Armory.

Col. Frank A. Hancock, commander of the Fifth Regiment, presented medals to the following:

The War in Ethiopia

Looking back on the Italian-Ethiopian War, it seems clear that but for mistake of the Negus' army in abandoning a successful line of defense, the outcome would still be very much in doubt. Instead of Mussolini's legions occupying Addis Ababa and Il Duce shouting "Ethiopia is Italian" to a World which eventually must admit this as an accomplished fact, Italy would be facing the prospect of another year of costly warfare with League of Nations sanctions and a shaky national financial structure making a compromise peace decidedly likely. Had not Haile Selassie's generals discarded the strategy of his foreign military advisers, Marshall Badoglio might even now be digging in somewhere north of Dessaye to await the end of the rainy season.

Not so long ago, it was almost the universal opinion of those following the campaign that Italy would not win out this year. The Ethiopian armies were pursuing the only tactics by which they could hope to attain success over a foe much better equipped and armed than they,—the Fabian tactics so successfully employed by Washington during the Revolutionary War and by numerous other commanders in similar situations in military history. The country was perfectly adapted to guerrilla warfare, the sniping, the attack and quick retreat, and the refusal to ever meet superior forces in direct engagement. It was a faithful adherence to these tactics which made the Italian advance so slow up until February. In the rugged Ethiopian terrain small bodies of defenders were safe from the eyes of the Italian Air Force and thus protected from the Badoglio's artillery and the gas and bombs of the planes.

This situation was unavoidable on the Italian side. Their war plans were more or less laid out for them by the nature of things. With no nerve centers by which Ethiopian resistance could be paralyzed or vital arteries, except the railroad, which could be severed, the only course open was to move directly across the country toward Addis Ababa. With nothing but caravan trails across the greater part of this country of arid deserts, high mountains and deep valleys, progress must of necessity be slow. For every mile forward, several miles of road-way had to be constructed, and lines of supply guarded. A quicker way perhaps would be to take the only line of communication to the sea, the railroad, but as this is a French concession outside of a half-hearted attempt to cross the desert near Mount Musa Ali the Italian forces left the railroad alone.

So, with the situation as if it had been staged for harassing tactics rather than mass battle, the Ethiopian chiefs, flushed with a few minor successes in encounters with Italian forces, threw their only advantage to the winds and decided they could stand up and fight Il Duce's forces and beat them. The result was inevitable. Large bodies of Abyssinian warriors, armed with rifles and spears, gathered at mountain passes to annihilate the Roman invaders as they approached. However, instead of Italian soldiers to fight hand to hand, came bombs, artillery fire and gas. The latter particularly was effective, settling in the mountain passes on troops without gas protection. Without such protection, without modern artillery, anti-aircraft guns or opposing aircraft, the Ethiopians were defeated in a series of engagements and finally when Marshall Badoglio reached Dessaye and a hard road to Addis Ababa, the opposition was routed, Selassie fled the country and the war was over.

General John J. Pershing, General of the Armies of the United States, welcomed to Laclede, Mo., where he stopped prior to coming to Washington. The general is shown being greeted by Mrs. A. E. Glover. At the extreme left is his boyhood friend, Ed Allen, and next to him is John Crowder, brother of the late General Crowder.

Few military lessons will be learned from the war. Nothing can be learned of the effectiveness of aircraft operating as a separate unit apart from ground troops because there was no aerial or anti-aircraft opposition.

The efficacy of modern communications was well demonstrated. In previous wars the coordination of two divergent forces was difficult and disaster lurked in the loss of central control. By means of radio, however, the Italian forces in the North and the South were always kept in perfect rapport. The utilization of mechanized equipment, particularly by Graziani in the South, met with considerable success according to reports, as long as he was operating on the plains and in the foothills. Their usefulness stopped, however, when the high mountain ranges were reached. In the capture of a number of Italian light tanks by the Ethiopians, some writers see great vulnerability in this arm. However, we will have to await more detailed reports on the operation of the armored cars and tanks, if forthcoming, for any conclusions to be reached as effectiveness of mechanization.

The defeat of the Ethiopians earlier than most observers had predicted should not have been unexpected, however. For, just as the superiority of Italian armament would have at all courses eventually prevailed over the unprepared defenders, so the highly trained and disciplined officers and men and careful Staff planning of the Italian Army were bound to defeat undisciplined troops and unskilled leadership. Poor Staff work and generalship were just as likely to fail Ethiopia as were her ancient weapons.

Announce General Officers

Special orders this week carried the announcement of the appointments of Brig. Gen. Herbert J. Brees, USA, as major general with rank from May 2, 1936, and Col. George R. Spalding, USA, CE, as brigadier general with rank from May 14, 1936.

Favor MAC Change

The Senate May 12 passed the bill S. 4390 to amend the National Defense Act relating to the Medical Administrative Corps which would repeal existing law requiring that appointments to that Corps be confined to enlisted men and make future appointments only from graduates of a recognized pharmacy school or college with four year courses.

The bill strikes out the section which reads, "enlisted men of the Medical Department between the ages of 21 and 32 years, who have had at least 2 years' service," and substitutes the following: "pharmacists between the ages of 21 and 32 years, who are graduates of recognized schools or colleges of pharmacy requiring 4 years of instruction for graduation, under such regulations and after such examination as the Secretary of War shall prescribe; and provided further, That the number of such pharmacists in the Medical Administrative Corps shall not exceed 16."

In explaining the bill Senator Shepard said: "Mr. President, at present those performing the duties of pharmacists in the Medical Administrative Corps are taken from among the enlisted men in the Medical Corps, and they have at first no special knowledge or technical qualifications to fit them for the work. The bill requires that before men shall hereafter be appointed to the position of pharmacist they must be graduates of recognized schools or colleges of pharmacy having 4-year courses. The bill adds nothing to the cost of administration but merely provides that as vacancies occur in the positions of pharmacists in the Medical Corps they shall be filled by men specially qualified as I have indicated. This will give the Army a group of pharmacists with thorough technical training and attainment."

Navy Shore Construction

The House Naval committee yesterday began hearings on the $30,000,000 naval shore construction authorization program. A number of the committee members announced that they would offer amendments.

Honor General Dunlap

The House on May 14 approved the Senate amendment to the bill authorizing the award of a Navy Cross to the late Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap, USMC, who lost his life in rescuing a woman from a collapsing building in France.

The Journal Salutes

This week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL salutes:

Major Gen. Fox Conner, USA, upon his assumption of command of the First Army.

Capt. William Pierre Robert, (CC), USN, who has been selected to be a rear admiral in the construction corps of the Navy.

Brig. Gen. James T. Buttrick, USMC, upon his assignment as commandant of Parris Island, S. C.

Degrees to Service Graduates

The House Military Affairs Committee this week favorably reported HR 11922 granting the degree of bachelor of science to all living graduates of service academies.

It will be recalled that a few years ago the Congress enacted a law giving the Military, Naval and Coast Guard academies the power to grant degrees provided they were accredited by the Association of American Universities. Prior to the passage of that act, however, the service academies had had no incentive nor reason to secure such recognition. The act as drafted provided that they could grant such degrees only after such recognition. Thus, while recognition was extended to the schools those graduated before the recognition were not given degrees.

The bill reported out by the House committee, which had been introduced by Representative McSwain "by request," amends the law so as to provide: "That on and after the date of the accrediting of the said academies by the Association of American Universities the superintendents of the respective academies may, under such rules and regulations as the respective secretaries may make, confer the degree of bachelor of science upon all living graduates of the said academies."

House Naval Group Acts

Representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Naval Committee, stated this week that he would try to secure preferred status for the auxiliary ship construction and the Alameda aviation base bills in an effort to secure passage of the bills this session of Congress.

A special rule will be asked of the House Rules Committee, Chairman Vinson declared. The Alameda bill has already passed the Senate, while the auxiliary bill has never been reported by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. Should the latter be passed by the House in the near future and secure expeditious handling in the upper house. It stands a chance of enactment. Full hearings have been held by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee on the measure.

The House Naval Committee at a meeting May 14 favorably reported S. J. Res. 209, authorizing the presentation of silver medals to personnel of the Second Byrd Antarctic Expedition, and S. 3369, authorizing the posthumous appointment of Radioman Ernest E. Dailey, who lost his life in the Macon disaster, as a Radio Electrician. The committee also reported legislation to confer upon Col. James J. Meade, USMC, and former Cpl. Harold R. Wood, USMC, the Distinguished Service Medal for activities in Haiti in 1919.

Report Army Housing Bill

The revised Army housing bill, carrying $29,000,733, for construction at posts and stations throughout the United States and its possessions, was reported to the House May 14 by Representative Lister Hill for the Military Affairs Committee.

"The bill is to meet a pressing need for new construction for the Army for the housing of personnel and property now housed under temporary, makeshift, unsatisfactory conditions," declared the committee report. "In many instances, the new construction is to take the place of temporary housing hastily constructed of wood during the World War, and now worn out and dilapidated."

Pointing to the increase in the enlisted strength of the Army, the committee declared that while this made the new housing projects imperative, they were sorely needed even if the Army had not been enlarged. No Air Corps items are included in the bill as reported. The original bill carried many projects for that arm, but the committee reached the conclusion that the Wilcox bill passed at the last session of Congress authorized all of these projects. Touching on this point, the report declares that because of this act "it is not necessary to make further authorization for the Army Air Corps at this time." Construction provided in the bill, the report says, provides housing for 12,560 enlisted men, housing for 515 officers, hospital facilities for 345 beds, garages for 2,241 public vehicles, stables for 1,496 animals, as well as schools, fire stations, sewage plants, water systems, warehouses, etc.

Some opposition to the bill may be made by Representative Faddis of the Military Affairs Committee. Colonel Faddis holds to the opinion that Army quarters are too costly and he may oppose the bill on the floor.

Oppose Special ORC Commission

Upon the objection of Senator King the bill S. 3736 authorizing and directing the appointment of Joseph W. Harrison as captain of the Chaplain Reserve Corps was passed over in the Senate May 12. Senator King pointed out that the War Department was against the enactment of the bill because Harrison is over age and quoted the following from the Secretary of War:

"As it appears that no useful military end would be served by Mr. Harrison's appointment in the Chaplains' Reserve, and as such appointment would be unjust to all other applicants who are required to meet the provisions of existing law and regulations, the War Department strongly opposes the enactment of S. 3736."

GHQ Air Force Notes

Application of enlisted men for transfer, in which final action is to be taken to the GHQ Headquarters, will be forwarded by the Commander of the Wing to which the applicant is assigned, to the Commanding Officer of the organization to which transfer is desired, according to Memorandum No. 12 of the GHQ Air Force. The mode of travel contemplated, the period of the delay desired and the effective date of the transfer shall be incorporated in the application, says the memorandum, in the event the enlisted man requesting transfer contemplates travel by privately owned motor vehicle, or by other means which will require absence enroute in excess of the authorized travel time. This also applies to flying cadets.

The following policy affecting combat crews of attack and biplace pursuit airplanes is announced in Memorandum 13:

a. All members of combat crews, to include aerial gunners, will be placed in first priority for flying pay;

b. Only qualified armorers are eligible for assignment to duty as aerial gunners in pursuit and attack units;

c. Enlisted men regularly assigned to duty as gunners in pursuit and attack units will be promoted, at the earliest practicable date, to a grade or specialist rating included in the fourth and fifth pay groups, in the following ratio for each three airplanes:

- 1.—Fourth pay group.
- 2.—Fifth pay group.

Pay groups as herein contemplated, are those specified in the table in Memorandum No. 26, this headquarters, dated October 25, 1935.

d. Assignment to duty as members of combat crews will be contingent on continued qualification as aerial gunners.

The Chief of the Air Corps concurring, the "Report of Vacancies by Trades," required by unclassified, Office of the Chief of Air Corps, dated Sept. 20, 1928, subject: "Enlisted Student for the Air Corps Technical School," to: Commanding Officers, all Air Corps stations will, insofar as all GHQ Air Force units are concerned, be discontinued immediately, according to Section II of Memorandum 13. However, the report will still be required by the Chief of the Air Corps for units (station complements, photo sections and Corps and Army Observation units), under the jurisdiction of Corps Area Commanders.

In lieu thereof, the senior GHQ Air Force commander at each GHQ Air Force station will forward to the Chief of Air Corps, a legible copy of the quarterly report "Distribution of Enlisted Men by Trade Qualification," required by Memorandum No. 25, dated October 21, 1935, as amended by Section III, Memorandum No. 1, dated January 7, 1936.

Class "B" Board Changed

Orders were issued this week revoking the previous order detailing officers as members of a board to classify officers of the Army under the provisions of section 24b of the National Defense Act. Members of the new board, which is to meet in Washington May 25, are as follows:

Maj. Gen. William E. Cole, Maj. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, Brig. Gen. Charles D. Roberts, Brig. Gen. William K. Naylor, Brig. Gen. Dana T. Merrill, Brig. Gen. Clement A. Trott, and Brig. Gen. Walter S. Grant, Col. Richard R. Pickering, AGD, and Maj. Clyde L. Hyssong, AGD, remain as recorder and assistant recorder, respectively.

Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, who was senior member of the first board, previously had been relieved. The new board omits General Connor, Brig. Gen. George H. Estes, and Brig. Gen. Robert O. Van Horn, and substitutes, Generals Roberts, Naylor, and Merrill.

ROA President Active

Col. Frank E. Lowe, FA-Res., National President of the Reserve Officers Association, attended the following departmental conventions during the last two weeks:

April 27—New Hampshire at Manchester; May 1 and 2—Texas, at Austin; 5 and 6—New Mexico at Albedir; 9 and 10—Arizona at Phoenix; 11 and 12—Washington, D. C., and the night of the 12th Delaware at Wilmington.

Colonel Lowe also attended the Wisconsin convention at Beloit, May 15. Other conventions which he will attend include Ohio at Akron, May 16; Arkansas at Little Rock, 23; Iowa at Des Moines, 24; Kentucky at Lexington, 27. He will also attend the following departmental meetings: May 28 and 29 at New Orleans, La., and Jackson, Miss.; May 30 at Memphis, Tenn.; May 31 at Montgomery, Ala., and June 1 at Atlanta, Ga.

Col. William P. Wattles, National Secretary of the Association, attended the Pennsylvania departmental convention at Uniontown, May 1 and 2. The night of the 2nd he attended the West Virginia convention at Morgantown and the 9th attended the Georgia convention at Ft. Screven.

Reserve Benefits

The House Military Affairs Committee this week reported out bill S. 4026 to amend the National Defense Act of June 3, 1916, Under the act of June 15, 1933 (48 Stat. 161), any officer of the Officers' Reserve Corps or any person in the Enlisted Reserve Corps ordered into active service "except for training." If disabled while in active service is entitled to all the benefits of the pensions laws existing at the time of his active service. Therefore, because of the words "except for training" a Reserve Officer or person in the Enlisted Reserve Corps permanently disabled while in active service undergoing training has no remedy. The War Department favors the elimination of the words "except for training," and estimates that the cost will not exceed $2-210 for the first year.

Directs Naval Communications

Rear Admiral Charles E. Courtney, USN, Commander of Cruisers, Battle Force and Cruiser Division Two will relieve Rear Admiral Gilbert J. Rowcliff, USN, as Director of Naval Communications, June 1. Admiral Rowcliff has been appointed Judge Advocate General of the Navy.

Admiral Courtney has been in command of Cruisers, Battle Force, since April 7, 1934.

During the Spanish-American War, he was attached to the USS New York, flagship of the North Atlantic Squadron, and was advance six numbers in rank for eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle. He was awarded a Navy Cross for his World War Service as commanding officer of the destroyer USS Trowan, and also in command of Destroyer Division 9, Atlantic Fleet.

In 1918 Admiral Courtney was ordered to fit out the USS Stringham, a new destroyer, and later in the year was ordered to command the USS President Grant. In 1921, following his service as Recruiting Inspector, Eastern Division, he was appointed Squadron Commander, Destroyer Force, Atlantic Fleet. Admiral Courtney served in the Bureau of Navigation during 1922 and 1923, and in 1924 was ordered to command the USS Cincinnati, light cruiser. He was Recruiting Inspector, Eastern and New England Divisions, in 1926, and Supervisor, New York Harbor, in 1927 and 1928. He commanded the USS Tennessee, battleship of the Battle Force from 1929 to 1931 when he went to the Naval War College, Newport, R. I. He served as Commandant of the Sixteenth Naval District and Navy Yard, Cavite, P. I., from June 17, 1932 until the spring of 1934 when he was ordered to his present duty.

Opposes Advanced Rank

The Navy Department is opposed to legislation providing the rank of brigadier general for officers assigned to duty as Director of Marine Corps Aviation.

In a letter to the House Naval Affairs Committee this week, Admiral William H. Standley, Acting Secretary of the Navy, opposes the passage of HR 11962, Representative Maas' bill for this purpose.

"The Navy Department believes that to give the rank and pay and allowances of a brigadier general to the Director of Aviation is neither necessary for efficiency nor justified by reason of other considerations," Admiral Standley states. "It is felt, moreover, that the bill discriminates against the heads of the three staff departments of the Marine Corps. These officers serve with temporary advanced rank during incumbency but revert to permanent rank on termination of appointment. Under the provisions of HR 11962 the Director of Aviation would likewise revert to permanent rank on expiration of his detail as such. Unlike the former, however, he would on subsequent retirement retire as a brigadier general whereas they would retire in the rank held at time of retirement. The bill is considered objectionable also because it requires that the officer detailed as Director of Aviation shall serve a term of four full years whereas the exigencies of the service might make it most desirable that his services be utilized elsewhere."

Selected As Rear Admiral, (CC), USN

The President May 7 approved the recommendation of the Construction Corps Selection Board for the promotion of Capt. William Pierre Robert, (CC), USN, to the rank of Rear Admiral in that Corps. He will become eligible for advancement to that rank upon the retirement of Rear Adm. Richard M. Watt, (CC), USN, July 1, 1936.

From 1929 until 1932 he served as Assistant to the Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair and was a member of the Board of Inspection and Survey, Navy Department, from 1932 until November, 1935, when he was appointed General Inspector for the Construction Corps.

Two New Navy Directors

The Navy Department has announced the assignment of two officers as heads of major divisions of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations: Capt. Royal E. Ingersoll, USN, as Director of War Plans, and Capt. Herbert P. Leary, USN, as Director of Fleet Training.

Captain Ingersoll, who has been on duty in the War Plans and until recently with Admiral William H. Standley at the London Naval Conference, relieves Rear Adm. William S. Pye, USN, who will become Assistant Chief of Naval Operations, Navy Department about June 1.

Captain Leary, who has been on duty in the Division of Fleet Training, succeeds Rear Adm. Manley H. Simons, USN, as Director. Rear Admiral Simons has orders to command Battleship Division One, Battle Force.

To Exchange Duties in October

Adm. Orin G. Murfin, USN, Commander-in-Chief of the Asiatic Fleet, and Rear Adm. Harry E. Yarnell, USN, Commander of the 14th Naval District and of the Pearl Harbor, T. H., Navy Yard, will exchange duties in October.

About October 1, Rear Admiral Yarnell will relieve Admiral Murfin of command of the Asiatic Fleet, and will be designated as Admiral while holding that command. Later that month, Admiral Murfin will assume the duties as Commandant at Pearl Harbor, and will resume his permanent rank of Rear Admiral.

Admiral Murfin assumed the duties of Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Asiatic Fleet with the rank of Admiral, Oct. 4, 1935, and Admiral Yarnell has been Commandant, Fourteenth Naval District with additional duty as Commandant, Navy Yard, Pearl Harbor, since June, 1933.

Naval Academy Alumni Luncheon

Coast Guard Activities

The sponsors for the four Coast Guard cutters which will be launched at the Philadelphia Navy Yard June 3 at 4 p. m. have been named. The vessels and their sponsors are: George W. Campbell—Miss Lucia Cabell Brown of Harrison, Tenn., great, great granddaughter of George W. Campbell. Samuel D. Ingham—Katherine Brush, noted author, a close relative of Samuel D. Ingham. William J. Duane—Miss Mai Duane of New York City, great, great granddaughter of William J. Duane. Roger B. Taney—Miss Corinne Fleury Taney, great granddaughter of Augustus Taney, brother of Roger B. Taney.

All four of the vessels are named after former secretaries of the Treasury.

A large number of Coast Guard officers and officials of the Treasury Department are expected to attend the launching ceremonies.

The George W. Campbell was reported 82.5 per cent completed in its hull and 79.9 per cent completed in its machinery, May 1, showing a gain of 9.9 and 19.9 per cent, respectively, for April. The Campbell is expected to be completed July 1, 1936.

The six other cutters under construction, the place of their construction, the percentage of completion in the hull and machinery and the expected date of completion are as follows:

Samuel D. Ingham, Philadelphia, 73.2 and 62.8, October, 1936; William J. Duane, Philadelphia, 76.1 and 73.7, September 1, 1936; Roger B. Taney, Philadelphia, 70.5 and 55.4, December 1, 1936; Alexander Hamilton, New York Navy Yard, 45.4 and 56.8, January 1, 1937; John C. Spencer, New York, 45.4 and 56.8, January 1, 1937; George M. Bibb, Charleston, S. C., 48.1 and 59.3, January, 1937.

Francis B. Condon, Associate Justice of the Rhode Island Supreme Court, will be the principal speaker at the graduation exercises of the Coast Guard Academy, June 8. Mr. Condon served in the 72 and 73 Congress and also the unexpired term of J. E. O'Connell in the 71 Congress. He will be introduced by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Steven S. Gibbons.

Coast Guard Confirmations

The following Coast Guard nominations were confirmed by the Senate:

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. A restudy of the entire pay schedule with a view to the upward revision suggested by Secretaries Dern and Sikanon.
2. Promotion systems in the Navy and Marine Corps to conform to service views and stimulate morale.
3. Repeal of the ban on reenlistment allowances; reform of retirement laws for enlisted men, particularly to assure reasonable disability retirement and adequate retirement pay; and an increase in the grades and ratings to provide better promotion prospects for enlisted men of the Army.
4. Fulfillment of War Department's modernization program for the Army; Baker Board strength for the Air Corps; and Treaty Strength for the Navy.
5. Revision of pension laws to assure widows of the Regular Services adequate, certain incomes.
6. Repeal of all laws limiting employment opportunities of retired officers.
7. Funds to carry out the act putting ROTC graduates on extended active duty and commissioning a limited number in the Regular Army.
8. Compensation for officers and enlisted men who use privately owned automobiles on Government business.

*Modification of Marine Corps promotion approved by both House and Senate.
Amendment of Army restriction carried in War Department appropriation bill.
Year's active duty for 1,000 reserve second lieutenants provided by Army appropriation bill.*

ASIDE FROM THE ADMIRATION which the successful North Atlantic cruise of the German dirigible Hindenburg excited in this country, it is entirely possible that Dr. Hugo Eckener may be deserving also of an expression of appreciation on the part of the American public. The policy of abandonment of dirigible development in this country sprang from a popular revulsion at the disasters to the Akron and the Macon. By bringing his success sharply and dramatically to the attention of the American public, Dr. Eckener is tending to restore national confidence in that phase of aeronautics. Already the public press is reflecting a rekindling of national pride and the question of "What of America" in the dirigible field is being discussed. What must have been the feeling of the American passengers on the Hindenburg when that magnificent German air vessel came to rest at the excellently equipped Lakehurst station now void of any actively commissioned airship and virtually a relic of days of American enterprise in the lighter-than-air field? What, too, must have been the feeling of President Roosevelt—proud advocate of American Naval traditions—when he greeted the likeable and successful Dr. Eckener? One thing is certain: neither the American passengers on the Hindenburg nor President Roosevelt could have felt that our abandonment of zeppelin-type development was due to any wish on the part of the men formerly engaged in that work. Despite the disasters, despite the loss in life, there are no stronger advocates of lighter-than-air construction than the Naval officers and enlisted men trained in that field. No one better appreciates the risks and dangers involved, yet they are ready and anxious to continue the work for which their comrades have died. In dropping its development program the Navy Department put the matter of its resumption up to the special Durand committee. That committee, composed of eminent scientists, recommended resumption of experimentation and development some months ago. Their report is still "under study" at the Department while the Durand committee is continuing with work on a technical report which will not be ready until late in the Summer. There is little doubt but that the Navy will resume its lighter-than-air program. The question is how soon it will start to work again. The longer the delay the greater will be the loss in trained men who will have gone into other fields, in lack of continuity of research, and in lagging behind nations who have moved steadily onward. Where would other modes of transportation be if their development had been periodically dropped because of accidents incident to progress?

THE SERVICE IS appreciative and proud of the progress Congress is permitting at the United States Military Academy. Despite the periodic squawking of so-called educators, West Point has been maintained at the highest level of efficiency for the purpose for which it was founded. Under the superintendency of Maj. Gen. W. D. Connor, the Academy has been kept moving forward, always completely abreast of the times and utilizing to the utmost the means supplied. Now, in the 1937 Appropriation bill Congress has provided $431,000 for the purchase of land in the vicinity of West Point and, in addition, the President has signed the bill authorizing the acceptance of an air field generously donated by the town of Newburgh, N. Y. The land to be purchased will serve a double purpose in that it will be a portion of the territory ownership of which is essential to protect the Academy's water supply and that it also will afford terrain suitable for ranges and maneuvers. The Academy should have complete facilities for training in all the Arms under field conditions. Combat firing, machine gun and field artillery ranges should be close at hand. Some of the need will be met by the land for which money has been appropriated. In addition the balance of the $1,500,000 authorized may be forthcoming from the next Congress. It is estimated that the complete fund would provide adequately for protection of the water supply and furnish the terrain necessary for a well rounded military education without the necessity of moving the cadets many miles from the Academy. The Newburgh air field will provide facilities for better familiarizing the cadets with the functions and capabilities of the air arm. It is anticipated that the field will be in excellent condition, $57,000 having been allotted for grading, draining, etc., by the Works Progress Administration and $9,000 by the city of Newburgh itself. For the time being there will be no buildings on the military area but both the cadets and the air units employed will be given the additional benefits of field conditions. Congress may be assured that if it will continue to provide for the Academy the service will continue to maintain at the highest level the service school envisioned by George Washington.

Service Humor

Strange

He—"Your face is very familiar to me, Jenkins!"

New Butler—"Quite strange, sir! I have always worked for the best people, sir!"

Long Siege

"Where have you been for the last four years?"

"At college taking medicine."

"And did you finally get well?"

—15th Inf. Sentinel.

Ah Wilderness!

Zone Cop—"Hey, you! Didn't you hear me say 'Pull over there?'"

Buckvan—"Why, I thought you said, 'Good afternoon, Field Marshal!'"

Cop (Smiling)—"Isn't it a warm day today, Field Marshal?"

Good Choice

DiTavi (pointing to item on menu)—"I'll take some of that to begin with."

Hickey—"Sorry, but that's what the orchestra is playing."

—Hamlin Special, CUC Co. 1252.

No Wrecks Here

"Yes, sir," said the porter of a very small railway. "Ours is the very safest railway in the world. A collision on our line is an impossibility, I assure you!"

"Indeed, and how is that?" asked the stranger.

"We have only one train, sir."

—Sixth District Gazette, CCC.

Wise Woodchucks Know

It seems that two woodchucks were ambling peacefully along through a green pasture. Suddenly, without warning a hunter began to peg shots at them.

One of the woodchucks grew terribly frightened.

"Come on," he urged his friend, "Let's run."

"Aw," soothed the other, "don't be afraid. I've known that hunter for years. He's cross-eyed. He'll aim at us and hit the bird in that tree."

"That's what you think," trembled the frightened chuck, "Right now, he's aiming at the bird in the tree."

—The Review, CCC Glenview, Ill.

Tough Job

If the adjutant writes a letter it is too long,

If he sends a post card it is too short;

If he doesn't send a notice he's lazy;

If he attends a meeting he's butting in,

If he stays away he is a shirker;

If he duns a member for his dues, he's moaning;

If he doesn't, he's slipping;

If he asks for service he's incompetent—

If he doesn't he's bull-headed;

If he writes his reports complete they are too long,

If he condenses them they are incomplete;

If he talks on a subject he is trying to run things,

If he remains quiet he has lost interest.

Ashes to ashes

Dust to dust,

If others won't do it,

The adjutant must.

—California Legionnaire.

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given in this column as soon as possible after receipt.

F. I. T.—The War Department informed us that time spent in the Navy, terminated by a bad conduct discharge, can be counted for retirement purposes by an Army enlisted man, if such bad conduct discharge was not given because of fraudulent enlistment. You should make application to the Adjutant General requesting that you be credited with the time mentioned.

H. G. M.—The variation in policy between non-commissioned officers appointed by chiefs of branches and those appointed by regimental commanders with regard to service on foreign stations results from a fundamental difference between the two. Non-commissioned officers appointed by a chief of branch are appointed in accordance with an allocation of grades for specified duties, throughout the United States and foreign possessions and the station on which a man is serving when appointed has no relation to his appointment. However, men appointed by regimental commanders are to fill a particular job in that organization and should be expected to serve in that job for a required length of time.

J. A. H.—Company "L," 3rd Batt. Engineers, sailed from San Francisco, Jan. 5, 1912, for the Philippine Islands and arrived Feb. 4, 1912.

"You can reach me by Telephone"

"You can reach me by telephone" . . . you say it casually, but there is assurance in your voice. For you can depend on telephone service. You call a number and a voice answers—across the street or a continent. It's so easy to do—you have been doing it for years. Use has dimmed the wonder of the telephone.

Yet the wonder grows—there is no ending to telephone progress. Service is quicker, clearer and more accurate. Improvements are made each year.

Things once thought impossible are now accomplished fact. Tomorrow will see still greater achievement.

That is the pioneering spirit of American enterprise. American initiative and American resourcefulness have given this country the best telephone service in the world.

Obviously this did not just happen. It has been brought about by the development of the Bell System over the past half-century.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Service Committee Chairmanships—The death of Senator Park Trammell, May 8, and the decision of Representative Tilman B. Parks, announced this week, not to run for re-election will leave two of the most important Service congressional posts vacant next year. Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, who has been acting chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee since Senator Trammell was taken ill weeks ago probably will continue as acting chairman of the committee the remainder of the session and will take over the chairmanship in the next Congress. As Senator Walsh was elected in 1934 for a six year term, his return to the next Congress is assured. A member of the Senate since 1918, Senator Walsh has always supported an adequate Army and Navy.

The retirement of Representative Parks will leave open the chairmanship of the House subcommittee on military appropriations next year, and while it is by no means definitely settled as yet, the post will probably be taken by Representative Tom Blanton of Texas. Congressman Blanton, senior majority member on the War Department subcommittee, has also been acting chairman of the subcommittee on District of Columbia appropriations, and the decision as to whether he will take over the Army appropriations post, depends upon his re-election to Congress and upon his choice of which subcommittee he desires to head. One time an avowed foe of the armed services, opposing every increase and supporting every proposed curtailment, the Texan has become a strong advocate of adequate national defense in the past few years. Since becoming a member of the Army appropriations subcommittee four years ago, Representative Blanton has made a number of inspection trips to strategic Army posts and has acquired a comprehensive knowledge of the Army which will fit him for the chairmanship if he takes it. While it is known that he would normally prefer the Army post, Mr. Blanton may continue in charge of District of Columbia appropriations because of the fight he has been waging against District officials.

The other Service committees seem likely to retain their present chairmen in the next Congress. Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, is up for reelection as is Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on naval appropriations. Representative John J. McSwain of South Carolina, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and Representative Glover H. Cary, chairman of the House subcommittee on naval appropriations of course all have to face their constituents. Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on military appropriations does not come up for re-election again until 1940, however. Senator Sheppard has some opposition but according to those in touch with Texas politics, should be returned next Fall. He has three opponents for the Democratic nomination, including Representative Joe Eagle, and is also opposed by the Townsendites. Representatives Vinson and Cary are considered to be fairly well assured of re-election. Senator Byrnes will face opposition, it is understood, while Representative McSwain has not yet declared for re-election. The House committee chairman said this week that he would run this year if his health improved sufficiently to enable him to make the campaign. Never in robust health for the past few years, the South Carolinian has been confined to his home several times this winter with colds and is not at all at par physically at present.

Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps—Considerable sentiment is arising in favor of Brig. Gen. Hugh Matthews, The Quartermaster of the Marine Corps, when the subject of a successor to Maj. Gen. John Henry Russell as Commandant of the Marine Corps in November comes up. General Matthews is popular with the older officers of the Corps, and has made an outstanding record for himself in the service.

He has been in the office of The Quartermaster since June 19, 1903, advancing from the rank of Captain to become The Quartermaster, Dec. 26, 1929. General

Matthews has been the recipient of the Spanish Campaign Medal, the Philippine Medal, the China Campaign Medal, the Cuban Campaign Medal, Legion of Honor (France), Croix de Guerre (France), Navy Cross, Victory Medal, Army Distinguished Service Medal, Expeditionary Medal and two citations.

He was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Marine Corps, March 3, 1900, and has served in China, Panama, Cuba, the Philippines, Santa Domingo and in France with the 2nd Division.

Last week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL was informed at Marine Corps Headquarters that General Matthews was not eligible to become Commandant, stating that only general officers of the line are so eligible. However, it has been learned that this is an error. The Act of Aug. 29, 1916, concerning the appointment of Major General Commandant (39 Stat., page 600, Chap. 417) states:

"That appointments hereafter made to the position of major general commandant under the provisions of the Act approved December nineteenth, nineteen hundred and thirteen, entitled 'An Act to make the tenure of office of the major general commandant of the Marine Corps for a term of four years,' shall be made from officers of the active list of the Marine Corps not below the rank of colonel."

Durand Committee Technical Report—The visit to the United States this week of Germany's giant zeppelin, the Hindenburg, brings to mind the report of the so-called Durand Committee appointed by Secretary of the Navy Swanson in March, 1905, to "review and analyze the past and present situation as to the design and construction of airships and to make recommendations as to their future design and construction." The Durand Committee in January advised against the construction of the lighter-than-air craft for both commercial and military use.

The Committee, headed by William F. Durand, Professor Emeritus of Mechanical Engineering, Stanford University, is expected to make public a supplemental report the latter part of the summer which will consist entirely of technical data. At first it was thought the technical report would be ready sometime in June, but judging from the progress made by the Committee to date, it will be late in the summer. Made up almost entirely of college professors the Durand Committee can not devote its full time to the consideration of lighter-than-air craft. Therefore the Committee can work only when they can all get together. However, the Committee is expected to progress much faster when the college courses are completed the latter part of this month and the members can spend more time to the study.

Tests and experiments already have been made at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Goodyear Plant, Akron, O., at Chicago, at Langley Field, Va., and at various other places.

Despite the Durand Committee's report, the Navy Department apparently has not altered its policy in regard to future construction of small lighter-than-air craft for training purposes. However, the Navy Department has not requested any appropriation from Congress to carry on a lighter-than-air craft program, and, as a result, no such appropriation has been forthcoming from Congress.

Construction Progress of Navy Vessels—The Aircraft carriers USS Yorktown and USS Enterprise were reported 75.9, 77.3 and 69.5, 72 per cent completed in the hull and machinery, respectively, May 1. No progress has been reported on the Aircraft Carrier USS Wasp since the keel was laid, April 1, 1936. A gain of 2.8 and 1.9 per cent on the hull and machinery was made during April on the Yorktown, while a gain of 2 and 2.9 per cent was made during April on the Enterprise. The Yorktown is scheduled for completion March 15, 1937 and the Enterprise July 1, 1937.

Only .1 and .4 per cent were reported gained in the hull and machinery, respectively, of the heavy cruiser USS Quincy during April. However, the Quincy is 99.6 per cent completed in both its hull and machinery, and preliminary trials have been completed. It will be completed by June 2, 1936. The heavy cruiser USS Vincennes gained 2.5 and 1.5 per cent during the month to bring its per cent of completion up to 80.5 and 81.4 in the hull and machinery, respectively. It is scheduled for completion January 2, 1937. The heavy cruiser USS Wichita gained 4.4 and 1.4 per cent to bring its per cent of completion up to 22.4 and 21.8 in the hull and machinery, respectively. The Wichita is scheduled for completion May 1, 1938.

Following is the place of construction, the percentages of completion on hull and machinery May 1 and the estimated dates of completion of ships of other classes under construction for the Navy:

Light Cruisers—Brooklyn, New York Navy Yard, 60.2 and 49.8, May 1, 1937; Philadelphia, Philadelphia Navy Yard, 54.5 and 38.5, May 1, 1937; Savannah, New York S. B. Corp., 35 and 54.1, June 15, 1937; Nashville, New York Shipbuilding Corp., 33.6 and 52.1, September 15, 1937; Phoenix, New York S. B. Corp., 24.4 and 21.6, December 15, 1937; Boise, Newport News, 45.1 and 29.3, August 22, 1937; Honolulu, New York Navy Yard, 39.9 and 36, July 1, 1937. No progress is reported on the St. Louis, Newport News, and Helena, New York Navy Yard, but they are scheduled for completion January 2, 1939 and May 16, 1939, respectively.

Submarines—Pike, Portsmouth Navy Yard, completed April 17, 1936; Perch, Groton, Conn., 88.8 and 63, November 22, 1936; Pickerell, Groton, 83 and 56, February 22, 1937; Permit, Groton, 73.1 and 45, May 22, 1937; Plunger, Portsmouth, 53.4 and 55.5, February 1, 1937; Pollack, Portsmouth, 44.7 and 48.8, May 1, 1937; Pompano, Mare Island Navy Yard, 26.2 and 47.6, May 1, 1937; Salmon, Groton, 15.6 and 4, December 19, 1937; Seal, Groton, 14.2 and 4, March 19, 1938; Skipjack, Groton, 13.9 and 4, June 19, 1938; Snapper, Portsmouth, 2.9 hull, March 1, 1938; Stingray, Portsmouth, 2.9 hull, June 1, 1938; Sturgeon, Mare Island, 1.2 hull, June 1, 1938.

Destroyers (1850 ton)—Porter, Camden, 81.2 and 86.1, September 1, 1936; Selfridge, Camden, 76.1 and 79.3, October 1, 1936; McDougal, Camden, 62.6 and 74.1, December 1, 1936; Winslow, Camden, 61.2 and 72.9, January 1, 1937; Clark, Fore River, 99.3 and 96.9, May 20, 1936 (preliminary trials completed); Moffett, Fore River, 93.1 and 93.3, July 1, 1936; Balch, Fore River, 85.3 and 88.6, August 1, 1936; Somers, Kearney, N. J., 45.6 and 42, May 22, 1937; Warrington, Kearney, 42.8 and 41.7, August 22, 1937; Sampson, Bath, Me., 5.9 and 7.9, December 19, 1937; Davis, Bath, 5.6 and 6.9, March 19, 1938; Jouett, Bath, 6.4 and 6, June 19, 1938.

Destroyers (1500 ton)—Mahan, Staten Island, N. Y., 95.9 and 90.8, July 1, 1936; Cummings, Staten Island, 92.4 and 86.3, July 15, 1936 (delay may be involved); Drayton, Bath, 97.1 and 93.1, July 1, 1936; Lamson, Bath, 89 and 88.2, August 17, 1936; Flusser, Kearney, 93.8 and 95.6, July 1, 1936; Reid, Kearney, 91.6 and 91.2, July 15, 1936; Case, Boston Navy Yard, 89.5 and 82, November 1, 1936; Conyngham, Boston, 87 and 77.5, November 1, 1936; Cassin, Philadelphia, 80.2 and 83, September 1, 1936; Shaw, Philadelphia, 87 and 82, October 1, 1936; Tucker, Norfolk, 90.4 and 87.5, October 1, 1936; Downes, Norfolk, 86.4 and 85.5, November 1, 1936; Dushung, Puget Sound, 87.8 and 81, September 1, 1936; Perkins, Puget Sound, 86.4 and 81, October 1, 1936; Smith, Mare Island, 83.8 and 81.1, September 1, 1936; Preston, Mare Island, 79.1 and 77.7, October 1, 1936; Gridley, Fore River, 37.9 and 37.7, March 2, 1937; Craven, Fore River, 36.5 and 34.6, June 2, 1937; Dunlap, Staten Island, 63.6 and 62.1, October 9, 1936; Fanning, Staten Island, 61.6 and 61.1, December 9, 1936; Bagley, Norfolk, 40.1 and 65.6, January 1, 1937; Blue, Norfolk, 33 and 51.5, March 1, 1937; Helm, Norfolk, 32 and 47.5, May 1, 1937; Mugford, Boston, 32 and 51, February 1, 1937; Ralph Talbot, Boston, 32 and 50, May 1, 1937; Henley, Mare Island, 29.1 and 52.7, February 1, 1937; Patterson, Puget Sound, 33.5 and 53.6, February 1, 1937; Jarvis, Puget Sound, 29.5 and 53.6, May 1, 1937; Benham, Ellet, and Lang, Kearney, N. Establish "Moffett Trophy"—A new trophy to be called the "Rear Admiral William A. Moffett Memorial Trophy" is to be awarded annually to the battleship or cruiser based aviation unit which conducts its operations throughout the year with the maximum of safety.

The trophy, a large silver plaque mounted on a walnut base, was purchased with funds received from Naval aviators and is in memory of the late Rear. Adm. William A. Moffett, USN, who spent many years in the interest of Naval Aviation. The plaque bears 25 small individual shields, upon which will be engraved the names of the units annually receiving the award. The ship winning the trophy will retain it until won by another unit.

The same rules which apply to the award of the Herbert Schiff Memorial Trophy will govern the awarding of the Moffett Trophy. The Schiff Trophy is presented annually to the naval aviation activity flying the greatest number of hours during the fiscal year with proportionately the fewest injuries to personnel and least damage to material. However, the Rear Admiral William A. Moffett Memorial Trophy is to be contested for only by battleships and cruiser based units.

The Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics will compute the scores annually and upon notification, the Chief of Naval Operations will announce the name of the winning unit of the Naval service.

The Commander-in-Chief, United States Fleet, will arrange appropriate ceremonies for the first presentation of the Moffett Trophy to the winning unit for the fiscal year 1936.

Enlisted Disability Retirement

placed on a small pension which is not at all sufficient to support them.

Existing law provides a pension scale for disabled enlisted men based entirely upon the degree of disability and without regard to the amount of service rendered.

A recruit of a few weeks service is in the same status as a master sergeant of 20 years service. Inasmuch as commissioned and warrant officers are eligible for retirement for disability as well as after long service upon three-quarters pay, it was asked that enlisted men be given the same rights. The War Department agreed with the principle that men who enter the Army "for a career," have had a number of years service and have attained some promotion should receive more compensation than a private with only a year or two in the Army. Declaring, however, 92 percent of the men disabled have less than five years service, the Department opposed the enactment of any legislation which would have based their compensation upon a percentage of their active duty pay.

The present monthly pension rates for peace-time disability run as follows: 10% disabled—$6; 20%—$9; 30%—$13; 40%—$18; 50%—$22; 60%—$27; 70%—$31; 80%—$36; 90%—$40; and 100%—$45. An additional $12 a month is allowed for the loss of a foot, hand, or eye, and if two hands, two feet, or a hand and a foot are lost or useless, or so completely disabled as to require the constant care of an attendant, a flat rate of $75 a month is paid. For complete disability, including blindness and loss of limbs, rates up to $125 a month are paid. It would be patently unfair to allow a private only three-quarters of his active pay of $21 a month if badly disabled. The Department therefore asked the House Military Committee to delay consideration of the question until it concluded a study it already had started looking to a system which would protect not only the non-commissioned officer of long service but also the private.

The system the Department has in mind and which has been the subject of considerable discussion with the Veterans Administration is a combination of the present system of pension based on degree of disability or degree of impairment of earning capacity in civil life and of the proposal for a percentage of active duty pay. The Department proposes that the present system be continued and that in addition, over and above the amount based on rate of disability that an additional compensation be allowed for length of service and rank held. For example, suppose six enlisted men were injured in an explosion. Two of them were privates with two years service, one was a staff sergeant with 15 years service, two were master sergeants with 25 years service, and one was a master sergeant with 28 years service. Say that one of the privates and one of the master sergeants with 25 years service were totally disabled so as to require the constant care of an attendant. Both would receive $75 a month under existing law, but the master sergeant, under the proposal, would receive an additional sum monthly. The others, say for the purpose of illustration were all rated as 50% disabled. The private would receive $22 a month; the staff sergeant, $22 a month plus an additional sum per month; and the master sergeants, $22 a month plus still higher additional sums, with the one with 28 years receiving more than the first grade sergeant with 25 years service. As the plan is still in a formative stage and its ultimate adoption will depend to a great extent upon the additional cost involved, no figures can as yet be given as to the additional compensation which would be allowed under the plan for service and rank.

The above illustration was one as to principle entirely, and does not mean that the plan contemplates that staff sergeants with 15 years service receive the additional compensation. It may be that the "bonus" for rank and service will only be allowed for men with longer service. On the other hand it may be that the plan will include men with less service and rank.

Another feature of the War Department's proposal, is that the present distinction between peace-time disability and war-time disability be eliminated and that men disabled in peace-time be given the higher war rates which range from $10 a month to $100 instead of $6 to $45 and with much higher rates for complete disability. The Veterans Administration, has been in the past, been in sympathy with this latter proposal, and only budgetary objections have prevented its fulfillment. It is also, it is said, to some extent in agreement with the present Army plan. It contemplates that the Administration continue to handle the payments, which will continue to be pensions rather than retired pay, and that the full funds for the pensions would be carried in the Veterans Administration budget rather than in the War Department appropriation bill.

What will come of the plan is problematical. Before it gets much further advanced, it is believed that the other armed services will have to be consulted, with possibly a joint board convened this summer. War Department officials, however, have high hopes that the matter can be worked out for presentation to the next Congress.

The Veterans Administration favors basing disability pension upon length of service and rank rather than extent of disability, and has submitted such a proposition to the Navy Department for recommendation. The Navy has recommended against such a plan and further is opposed to the Army proposed combination of this plan with the present system as outlined above. Under the Navy's present system whereby enlisted men can transfer to the Fleet Naval Reserve after 16 or 20 years service, the Army's plan is deemed unnecessary. Navy enlisted men, who are eligible for transfer to the Reserve may do so if they become disabled and thereupon are immediately transferred to the retired list.

Camp Perry Rifle Matches

The National Rifle Association Matches will be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, from Aug. 24 to Sept. 12, 1936, inclusive. The Infantry, Cavalry, Engineers of the Regular Army will send teams, as will the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. There will also be one National Guard and one civilian team from each state, as well as an ROTC and CMTC team from each corps area and three teams from the American Legion.

Col. Jay L. Benedict, 12th Inf., Ft. Howard, is the executive officer of the matches and will go to Camp Perry about July 20.

As has been the rule in the past, 50 per cent of the members of any service team must be men who have never competed in the Camp Perry matches before.

The Regular Army will furnish 1,600 troops to operate the matches and the Marine Corps will furnish about 200. About half of these will report in early August to make ready for the matches, and the others will report just before the matches begin.

An appropriation of $400,000 has been made for the matches this year, an increase of $50,000 over last year.

The Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring attended the matches last year, and he is expected to do so again this year.

Capt. Wiley H. O'Mohundro, 28th Inf., Ft. Ontario, N. Y., will captain the Infantry team; Capt. Thomas J. Heavey, 3rd Cav., Ft. Myer, Va., will captain the Cavalry team; Maj. James D. Andrews, Jr., Instructor National Guard, Spartanburg, S. C., will captain the Engineers team, and Maj. Merritt A. Edson will captain the Marine Corps team.

The Infantry and Cavalry will hold their preliminary training and tryouts at Camp Perry about the middle of June, while the Engineers will hold their training about the same time at Ft. Belvoir, Va. The Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps teams will have their team training and tryouts at Camp Guild, Wakefield, Mass.

Members of the National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice met in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War May 8 to formulate plans and rules for the Camp Perry Matches. The board consists of Harry H. Woodring; Maj. Gen. Edward Croft, Chief of Infantry; Maj. Gen. Albert H. Blanding, Chief of the National Guard Bureau; Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord; Maj. Gen. Robert H. Allen; Brig. Gen. Winfield S. Price; Brig. Gen. George C. Shaw; Brig. Gen. Fred M. Waterbury; Col. Walter C. Short; Col. Jay L. Benedict, Executive Officer of the Camp Perry Matches; Col. Julian C. Smith; Comdr. Willis A. Lee, Jr.; Comdr. J. E. Stika; Lt. Col. L. M. Rumsey, Jr.; Maj. Benjamin W. Mills; Maj. Nelson M. Walker; Maj. Francis W. Parker, Jr.; and Mr. K. K. V. Case, of the Dupont Powder Co.

Following the meeting of the National Board, Secretary Woodring gave a dinner for members of the Board, members of the Executive Committee National Rifle Association, who were also meeting in Washington.

The speeches at Secretary Woodring's dinner stressed the value of the National Matches to National Defense and were most interesting and well received. Among those making short addresses in addition to Secretary Woodring were General Malin Craig, chief of staff of the Army, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, executive vice president of the National Rifle Association; Col. Jay L. Benedict, Inf., USA, executive officer for the matches this year; Senator Marcus A. Coolidge, of Massachusetts; Representative Tilman B. Parks, of Arkansas, chairman of the subcommittee on War Department Appropriations, and Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Green declared it to be his belief that the laboring men and women of the United States are in favor of maintaining adequate national defense. He recalled that when he was a member of the Ohio State legislature he supported all measures for the benefit of Camp Perry and asserted his belief of the value of the National Matches.

General Craig stressed the importance of individual marksmanship in spite of the increasing use of automatic weapons. General Reckord traced the development of the National Matches and the efforts of the National Rifle Association to make them a success. Colonel Benedict set forth the policies he will follow in the conduct of the matches, particularly keeping in mind their military importance. Senator Coolidge spoke of the importance of rifle shooting and the interest in it in his state since its settlement. Representative Parks emphasized national defense and his pride and satisfaction in being a contributor to its maintenance through the appropriations committee.

In addition to the speakers the following were guests at the dinner:

Members of National Board—Maj. Gen. Albert H. Blanding, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Brig. Gen. Winfield S. Price, Brig. Gen. George C. Shaw, Brig. Gen. Fred M. Waterbury, Col. Walter C. Short, Col. Julian C. Smith, Comdr. Willis A. Lee, Jr., Comdr. J. E. Stika, Lt. Col. L. M. Rumsey, Jr., Maj. Benjamin W. Mills, Maj. Nelson M. Walker, Maj. Francis W. Parker, Jr., and Mr. K. K. V. Case.

Members of Executive Committee National Rifle Association—Brig. Gen. A. B. Critchfield, Lt. Col. L. W. T. Waller, Jr., Col. Robert F. Gadd, Col. Frank J. Schneller, Lt. Col. Julian S. Hatcher, Maj. W. W. Ashurst, Mr. Ray C. Bracken, and Mr. Karl T. Frederick.

Other Guests—Maj. Gen. W. H. Tschappat, Maj. Gen. Edgar T. Conley, Maj. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, Rear Adm. Harry G. Hamlet, Commissioner Daniel W. MacCormack, Col. Earl McFarland, Col. Adna R. Chaffee, Col. Ralph S. Keyser, Col. C. L. Dasher, Lt. Col. Basil D. Edwards, Lt. Col. John E. Mahon, Jr., Maj. Robert H. Lord, Mr. John C. Pugh, Capt. W. L. ### Service Sports

(Please address items for publication in this column to "Service Sports Editor, Army and Navy Journal, 1711 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C.")

Annapolis, Md.—Navy's varsity athletic teams split even in six contests, Saturday, May 9. The track team outclassed North Carolina, 72-54; the golf team topped Johns Hopkins, 24-3; the rifle team outshot the Essex Troop of Newark, N. J., 2,300-2,236; while the baseball team was swamped by Duke University, 17-1; the tennis team was white-washed, 9-0, by North Carolina, and the lacrosse team was defeated, 7-2.

West Point, N. Y.—Army's track team piled up a big lead in the early going and defeated Syracuse, 81½-44½, Saturday, May 9. In the four other contests Army was victorious in two and loser in two. The golf team beat Delaware, 54½-3½; the polo team triumphed over Yale, 11-6; while the Syracuse nine defeated Army's baseball team, 5-2, and Dartmouth copped its tennis match with Army, 6-3.

Princeton, N. J.—The Naval Academy's varsity crew out-stroked Princeton and Syracuse over Lake Carnegie, setting a new record of 9:12.6 for the mile-and-three-quarters course, Saturday, May 9. The midshipmen led Princeton by half-length and Syracuse by four at the finish. In the other race, the Navy junior varsity beat Princeton and Syracuse in that order. The junior varsity crew was two and a quarter lengths ahead of Princeton and six and three-quarters lengths in front of Syracuse.

Honor General Edwards

House Joint Resolution 579, ordered reported by the House Military Affairs Committee May 12, would authorize the President to award posthumously a Distinguished Service Medal to Brig. Gen. Clarence Ransom Edwards, who died Feb. 14, 1931, "after having organized the Twenty-sixth Division, and commanded it with distinction during all but 18 days of its active service at the front."

Interesting Firing at Fort Bragg

Airplane view of Ft. Bragg, N. C., with troops lined up for a mounted review on April 27, 1936. In the left foreground is a Battery in position firing a salute in honor of Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, Corps Area Commander. Present at this mounted review were 72 officers, 2008 enlisted men, 270 motor vehicles, 557 animals and 40 cannon, comprising the 75 MM pack howitzers of the 4th Field Artillery, the 75 MM guns, horsedrawn, of the 83rd Field Artillery, the 55 MM howitzers, truck and tractor drawn of the 17th Field Artillery and 155 GPF's and 240 MM howitzers of the 36th Field Artillery. Present also were personnel and vehicles of the Brigade Headquarters, Heavier-than-Air Troops, Balloon Squadron, Observation Battalion, Signal Corps, Medical Detachment, Ordnance, Quartermaster and Motor Transport Troops. Officer's quarters, a few barracks buildings, Post Headquarters, Post Hospital, and Chapel show the general arrangement of the post which is at the eastern end of the reservation of 122,000 acres. At the top of the photograph is seen Summerville Road leading into the target and maneuver areas of the reservation which stretches 25 miles to the west of the area occupied by barracks, quarters, etc. Brig. Gen. Manus McCloskey commands Ft. Bragg.

DURING the recent annual tactical inspection at Ft. Bragg, N. C., conducted by Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley during the period April 27-30, some interesting firing was done by the various units for the Corps Area Commander.

In the course of the tactical exercise General Moseley called for service firing from tactical positions. One battery from each of the five battalions was required to fire one problem apiece. Others at the OP who witnessed the fire were Brig. Gen. McCloskey, the post commander, Maj. Gen. Upton Birnie, Jr., chief of Field Artillery, Brig. Gen. Robert O. Van Horn from Atlanta and several staff officers.

The 4th Field Artillery, 75 mm pack howitzer, occupied positions in support of the front line Infantry units who were being hard pressed by enemy rifle and artillery fire. The mission was fired from the forward observation post and registered fire on hostile Infantry close to the friendly troops.

Battery "C," 36th FA (155 mm GPF guns) was assigned as a target, a hostile battery of medium artillery defiladed from terrestrial observation with destruction as the mission. Airplane observation was decided on and the plane observer was contacted with radio and the target identified to him with a minimum of delay. The first round landed in a swamp some 150 yards short of the target which was at a map range of 10' 360 yards, failed to explode and was not seen from the plane. The second round hit in the same locality but was sensed by the plane observer. The third round was reported as 20 yards right and less than 50 yards over. The battery commander then went into fire for effect with three rounds. The gun firing responded remarkably well considering the dispersion usually inherent in the weapon. As seen by the observing party the round fell 10 mills left, line over and line short of all which would have been effective on the target.

Battery "D," 36th FA (240 mm howitzer) was given a bridge as a target defiladed as to terrestrial observation and at a range of 9900 yards from the guns. The balloon, at an ascension point about 11000 yards from the target was told to observe but because of ground haze and the long range reported it could not identify the target. The airplane observer was contacted by radio and asked to adjust. He readily picked up the target. Three rounds were fired for adjustment, the third being reported 20 yards right and 20 yards short. The battery commander went into fire for effect with a series of three rounds which were reported as deflection correct, less than 50 yards over; deflection and range correct, dirt thrown all over target panel and deflection correct, less than 50 yards over. As observed terrestrially from the Corps Area commander's OP the shots were 7 mills left (over), line short and 10 mills left (over). Unfortunately the second round was a dud, otherwise the target would have been obliterated. It is believed that at least two of the rounds would have struck a bridge 100 yards long and ten yards wide and rendered it impassable for wheeled transportation.

The 17th FA fired two problems, one by Battery "A" and one by Battery "D," both 155 mm howitzers. Battery "A" fired at an enemy Battery range 7750 yards. Neutralization of the target was accomplished expeditiously and in a most convincing manner. The battery fired from its actual tactical position.

Battery "D" also fired counter-battery at a range of 8650 yards with airplane observation. The balloon was requested to observe, but reported that due to range, they were unable to do so. Airplane observer was called from landing field to observe fire; he was given coordinates of target, its description and the mission. Excellent effect was obtained on the target, the final salvo giving one target hit.

The 2nd Battalion, 83rd FA was given a target, enemy Infantry represented by silhouettes, 500 yards in front of front line for neutralization. The Liaison Officer immediately designated the target to the Reconnaissance Officer at the Battalion Observation Post who promptly took the target under fire, secured a bracket and went into fire for effect. In this setup the battery firing the mission was approximately 3500 yards to the right rear of the observation post with angle T of 300 mills.

The marriage of Miss Pauline Smith Jenkins, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Edward Jenkins, Inf., USA, of Ft. Francis E. Warren, Wyo., to 2nd Lt. Robert Middleton Booth, Inf., USA, son of Col. and Mrs. Lucian Dent Booth, OD, USA, of Governor's Island, N. Y., took place Saturday afternoon, May 9 at a military wedding at the Officers' Club at Ft. Warren. The ceremony was performed by candlelight by the Rev. Father James A. Hartmann of St. Joseph's Cathedral in Cheyenne, before an improvised altar of massed woodwardia, palms and gardenias.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, the bridal party walked to the altar through a lane of white satin ribbon carried by four small girls, Bimi Myer, Clellan McAllister, Helen Coleman and Helen Lewis.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Grecian gown of white satin with an overdress of Venetian lace which formed the long train. Her headdress, a coronet of duchesse lace, has been in the family for several generations, having belonged to her great grandmother. The orange blossoms in the coronet were worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Edward P. Jenkins, at her wedding. The bride's hip-length veil was of tulle edged with heliolum duchesse lace. Her bridal bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Russell F. Akers, jr., of Ft. Warren, was matron of honor.

The bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Jenkins, sister of the bride, Miss Ann Tefft and Miss Winifred Moon of Ft. Warren; Miss Kathleen Nye of Ft. Meade, S. Dak.; Miss Mary Lazear and Miss Estelle Wilcox of Cheyenne.

Lieutenant Booth's best man was Lt. K. G. Clow of Ft. Meade, So. Dak., and the ushers were: Lt. E. O. Liessman, Lt. L. W. Austin, Lt. E. Rustenberg, Lt. R. O. Lashley, and Lt. J. T. Mosby of Ft. Warren, and Lt. E. G. Sawyer of Ft. Meade.

Mrs. Thomas M. Tarpley, jr., of Ft. Warren, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the Recessional.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception with dancing was held at the Officers' Club for members of the family and intimate friends.

After the wedding trip through the south, Lieutenant and Mrs. Booth will be at home at Ft. Warren, where Lieutenant Booth is stationed with the First U. S. Infantry.

Out of town guests for the wedding were: Col. and Mrs. Lucian Dent Booth of Governor's Island, N. Y., Mr. and (Please turn to Page 832)

May 11, 1936

Col. George F. Baltzell, Commanding Officer, Ft. McClellan, entertained the Rotary Club of Anniston at a luncheon at the Fort Tuesday, May 5. After the luncheon, the Rotarians were escorted on a tour of inspection of the new construction now in process, as a part of the two million dollar construction program at Fort McClellan.

The 6th Cavalry Regiment from Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., under the command of Col. Llewellyn W. Oliver, arrived at Ft. McClellan, Saturday morning, to conduct their combat firing training program. At the completion of this program, the Sixth Cavalry will proceed to Ft. Benning, Ga., to participate in the concentration of the 8th Brigade for maneuvers.

Brig. Gen. R. O. Van Horn, Commanding 8th Brigade, Ft. McPherson, was the guest of the Commanding Officer, Ft. McClellan, on May 12, at which time he conducted the annual field firing and tactical test of the 6th Cavalry Regiment at that station. General Van Horn was accompanied by Mrs. R. O. Van Horn and while at Fort McClellan, they were guests of Col. George F. Baltzell, Commanding Officer Fort McClellan, and Mrs. Baltzell.

Col. Ralph C. Holliday, USA, and Col. John W. Lang, USA, now at The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., spent the week end at Ft. McClellan, Alabama, in conference with the Commanding Officer, Col. George F. Baltzell, regarding the summer training activities. Colonel Holliday will be in charge of the ROTC Training Camp this coming season. Col. John W. Lang, who accompanied Colonel Holliday to Ft. McClellan, Ala., has recently been ordered to that station for duty with the 22nd Infantry and will be second in command to the Commanding Officer, Col. George F. Baltzell.

Maj. (Chaplain) A. K. Mathews has returned from a 15-day leave, during which he attended the Convention of Army Chaplains held at St. Louis, Mo.

Maj. J. H. Blackwell, MC, returned from an inspection trip of numerous CCC Camps in North Alabama and North Mississippi. He was accompanied by Mrs. Blackwell. They report all camps visited in fine condition.

Lt. Floyd Wergeland, MC, returned Saturday from a week's inspection to CCC companies in South Alabama and Mississippi, reporting all CCC activities in excellent condition.

The Band School of Ft. McClellan under the able direction of W. O. John Belardi, is making a fine showing. Their initial appearance was made at formal Guard Mounting on the 4th inst., since which time they have participated in daily guard mounting and semi-weekly Retreat Parades. Col. George F. Baltzell states that he is very well pleased with the good work of the Band School.

LONG BEACH, CALIF.

May 10, 1936

Mrs. Charles Wheatley, wife of Lt. Comdr. Wheatley, USS New Orleans, was given an informal bon voyage dinner in midweek by Mrs. C. W. Brunson, wife of Lt. Comdr. Brunson, at her home on East Second Street. Mrs. Wheatley is sailing today aboard the liner Pennsylvania for New York, not to return until winter.

Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. J. C. Metzel and their four children are also sailing on the Pennsylvania for the East Coast to make their home in Washington, D. C. Upon the conclusion of a month's leave the officer will report to the Navy Department.

Complimenting Mrs. Arthur T. Moen of Coronado, wife of Lt. Comdr. Moen, who is her house guest this week-end, Mrs. Jacob Jacobson, USS Indianapolis, gave a party and invited eleven guests.

Mrs. Francis D. McCorkle, wife of Lt. McCorkle, USS Portland, is spending the week-end in San Diego as the guest of Mrs. Alex Loker, wife of Lt. Comdr. Loker.

Mrs. T. A. Tatterton of Honolulu, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Sullivan, wife of Lt. Sullivan, was complimented at a bridge luncheon Tuesday. Places at the flower-decked table were laid for seven other guests. Mrs. Tatterton will be here two months.

The young married set in Navy circles has been augmented by the arrival of Mrs. Edwin Schanze who has taken an apartment at Villa Riviera while her husband, Lieutenant Schanze, is detailed aboard USS Houghton.

In the round of farewell parties inspired by Mrs. John Wilkes, wife of Lt. Comdr. Wilkes, before she sails today on the liner Pennsylvania for the East Coast was a bridge luncheon given in Lakewood Country Club by Mrs. Stockard R. Hickey, wife of Lt. Hickey, USS Chicago. Among the twenty-two guests was Mrs. Merrill Comstock, who motored up from Coronado and has been the house guest a few days of Mrs. Hickey. Lt. Comdr. Comstock commands the new V-type submarine Cachet based at San Diego.

Shades of deep blue and yellow were artistically combined for the luncheon and

Naval Appropriations

Settlement of differences between the Senate and House over minor differences in the naval appropriation bill remain to be settled by conferees between the two houses.

Passed by the Senate last Friday, the bill carried a number of changes over the House bill the more important of which were provision for the Ship Model Basin at Cabin John, Md., an increase in Naval Reserve training activities, improvement of the interior illumination at the Naval Academy, harbor improvement at Pearl Harbor, and elimination of the Washington, D. C. Naval Hospital, and a five million dollar appropriation for procurement of a reserve supply of strategic domestic minerals.

The budget for the Naval Reserve, approved by the President, carried an enlarged training program for the Reserve. The House cut $921,531 from the Budget figures and the Senate put back $131,531 of the reduction. The Bureau of Navigation revealed this week that if the Senate increase is accepted, ten additional men will be added to each Fleet Naval Reserve division, additional training will be provided for Fleet and Volunteer officers and enlisted men, some training will be provided for Merchant Marine Reserve officers, and transportation will be provided for Middle West units to be given training next year in salt water.

An increase was made in the Senate bill in training of Reserves, permitting the instruction of 450 instead of 288 college students as platoon leaders. Funds are also allowed for the commissioning of 15 aviation cadets as second lieutenants in the Regular Marine Corps. The officers will be selected from the Marine Corps aviation cadets now at Pensacola by competitive examination.

Two amendments were added to the bill on the floor of the Senate, May 8. One permitted the employment of 20 instead of 19 Reserve officers on active duty, the other would give, Capt. George W. Calver, (MC), USN, assigned to duty at the Capitol, the pay and allowances of a rear admiral while on active duty and on retirement.

There was no record vote on passage of the bill by the Senate. The only vote recorded was on a motion to strike out provision for new battleship and other new construction. It is as follows:

OBITUARIES

Mr. William Butler Remey, son of the late Rear Adm. George Collier Remey and Mrs. Remey, died in Seattle, Wash., on April 29, age 54 years.

Funeral services were conducted by Chaplain Riddle, USN, at "Hidden Ranch," Kitsap County, Wash. Interment was on May 6 in the burial ground of the Society of Friends, West Chester, Pa.

Mr. Remey leaves a widow, Mrs. Mary Paschal Remey, and was survived by his mother, two sisters and two brothers.

Col. Geo. E. Lovell, USA-Ret., died at the Station Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., Tuesday, April 28, 1936. Funeral services were held in San Antonio, Chaplain O. J. Cohee, 23rd Infantry, officiating. Interment was at the National Cemetery Annex at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Colonel Lovell was born in Utica, Ill., on Oct. 1, 1864. He was graduated from Colgate University in 1885 and from the Command and General Staff School in 1914.

Prior to his entry in the Regular Army, Colonel Lovell served in the Volunteer Infantry during the War with Spain. He was commissioned a Captain in the 1st Florida Volunteer Infantry in May, 1898, and later commissioned as a Captain in the 29th U. S. Volunteer Infantry in July 1899, serving throughout the Philippine Campaign, and was honorably mustered out in May, 1901.

He was appointed a 1st Lieutenant of Cavalry, Regular Army, in February, 1901, joining the 7th Cavalry in Cuba. From this date to the beginning of the World War his service was entirely with the 7th and 14th Cavalry regiments.

During the World War he served overseas and through all engagements with the 3rd Division, as the commander of the Third Ammunition Train. With the Army of Occupation he was stationed at Merloch and Mulheim, Germany, returning to the United States in August, 1919, and to Camp Pike, Arkansas, for station. Upon the demobilization of the 3rd Division he was assigned to duty with the Cavalry Reserve Division, with Headquarters in San Antonio, Texas, where he served until he was retired on October 1, 1928, by operation of law.

Colonel Lovell participated in the following engagements: Champaign-Marne Defensive, July, 1918—Chateau Thierry; Aine-Marne Offensive, July, 1918—Chateau Thierry; St. Mihiel Offensive, September, 1918—Toul Sector; Meuse-Argonne Offensive, September, 1918—Montfaucon.

Colonel Lovell has made his home in San Antonio since 1923. He is survived by his widow, Mary Edith Lovell, his son Lt. Col. Geo. E. Lovell, Jr., AC, USA, and his daughter, Maida Lovell Barnhart, wife of Maj. F. H. Barnhart, Ft. Riley, Kans.

Col. George F. Cooke died at Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Col., May 1. He was born in Ohio, May 3, 1856. He began his military career as a second lieutenant in the 15th Infantry, Oct. 15, 1875 and retired March 12, 1910 with the rank of colonel. He resigned from the Service January 1, 1923. Funeral services were conducted May 6 and burial was in the Oak Hill Cemetery, Washington, D. C.

United States Senator Park Trammell, Chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, was buried at Lakeland, Fla., May 11. Senator Trammell died in Washington, D. C., Friday, May 8.

Senator Trammell had served in public office for 35 years. He was elected mayor of Lakeland at an early age, and was later State legislator, State senator, attorney general of Florida, governor and Senator. He has been Florida's junior Senator since 1917. Known as a strong advocate of the Navy, he died a few hours after the Senate passed one of the largest peacetime Navy fund bills on record.

Regarding Senator Trammell's death, Acting Secretary of the Navy, Admiral William H. Standley, USN, made the following statement:

"Senator Trammell was a great patriot and a great friend of the Navy. All true advocates of adequate national defense will mourn his passing. The passage by the Senate of the Naval appropriation bill for 1937 is singularly appropriate in coinciding with the termination of such a distinguished career. The overwhelming endorsement by the Senate of this measure on the very eve of the death of the distinguished Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee represents, in effect, a splendid tribute from his colleagues and crowns with success many years of public life devoted to the needs of national defense."

Col. John P. Ryan, USA-Ret., died at Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., May 3, 1936.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katharine Torney Ryan, and the following children, John Torney Ryan, instructor at University of Nevada; Mrs. Albert

E. Harris, wife of 1st Lt. A. E. Harris, West Point, N. Y.; and Miss Mary Torney Ryan, Reno, Nev., and by a grandchild Mary T. R. Harris.

Funeral services were conducted from the Presidio Chapel. Revs. Fathers Q. J. McMullin, C.T.P., and George Bryant officiating. Interment, with full military honors, in Presidio National Cemetery, May 4, 1936.

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Esther N. Delbert, wife of Chaplain (Major) Ralph C. Delbert, stationed at Fort Myer, Va., who died on May 12, 1936, will be held at the Ft. Myer Chapel at 1:30 P. M., on Friday, May 15. Col. Alva J. Brasted, Chief of Chaplains, with other Chaplains of the Army will act as honorary pallbearers. Interment will be in the Eastern Section, known as Chaplains' Knoll, of Arlington National Cemetery.

The wedding will take place in July in Pensacola, Fla., where Ensign Garrison is attached to the Air Station.

Col. Robert Duncan Brown, executive officer of the Sixty-third Coast Artillery, Ft. MacArthur, Calif., and Mrs. Brown announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rosalie Brown, to Ensign Raymond Payne, USN.

The marriage will take place June 13 at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in San Pedro. It is to be a formal military event and will be followed by a reception at the Officers' Club on the Post.

Mr. and Mrs. Tascia Polk Du Bose of Long Beach, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Polk Du Bose, to Ensign Julian Somerville Hatcher, Jr., USN. Mr. Hatcher, a son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. S. Hatcher, OD, USA, was graduated from the Naval Academy with the class of 1933. The wedding is to take place in June.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. P. Terrell, USA-Ret., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanne Elizabeth, to Mr. Horace Fenton McFeely.

Lt. Col. Richard S. Dodson, CAC, USA, and Mrs. Dodson of Ft. Hancock, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter Julia Whitten Dodson, to 1st Lt. Paul A. Roy, CAC, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roy of Lewiston, Maine.

The wedding will take place at Ft. Hancock the latter part of June. Miss Dodson graduated in 1933, with honors, from Randolph Macon Woman's College where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Omicron Pi. Lieutenant Roy was graduated from the United States Military Academy in the class of 1930.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ganey of New London, Conn., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rose Mary Ganey, to Lt. (jg) George Herrick Wales, USN, of Washington, D. C. The marriage will take place in the Autumn.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Reutro Thompson to Capt. James W. Mosteller, Jr., CWS (CAC) USA was solemnized at the Post Chapel, Ft. Benning, Ga., on Friday the first of May, at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The bride was given in marriage by her step-father, Lt. Col. J. T. Aydelotte, MC, USA. She is the daughter of Mrs. J. T. Aydelotte and the late Capt. E. P. Thompson and a granddaughter of the late Brig. Gen. J. Milton Thompson.

Mrs. E. T. Lewis of Ft. Benning, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. William Mosteller of Orlando, Fla. acted as his brother's best man. The wedding was attended only by members of the immediate families of the bride and groom, with the exception of Capt. and Mrs. W. D. Paschall and their daughter Mary May of Gainesville, Fla.

Capt. Victor S. Jackson (SC), USN, and Mrs. Jackson announce the engagement of their daughter Elizabeth to Ens. Charles Ford Garrison, USN, Class of 1933, U. S. Naval Academy, son of Lt. Comdr. P. E. Garrison (MC), USN-Ret., and Mrs. Garrison.

The wedding will take place in Pensacola, Fla. in July.

Mrs. Mildred L. Seaman, widow of the late Col. Claudius M. Seaman, CAC, USA, announces the engagement of her daughter Virginia to Mr. James F. Kimsella, son of Mrs. Conella L. Kimsella and Mr. James E. S. Kimsella. The wedding will take place at four o'clock, June 12, at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur Lippert have issued invitations to the marriage reception of their daughter and Ensign Irving Stahl Presler, USN, for Saturday afternoon, June 6, at the Carlton Hotel, Washington, D. C. The reception follows the wedding ceremony held earlier in the day in the Chapel at the Naval Academy.

Ensign Presler is a graduate of the Naval Academy, class of '34.

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Mayo to 2nd Lt. James Richard Winn, Fourteenth Field Artillery, was solemnized in the beautiful old Chapel at Ft. Riley, Kans., at four o'clock, May 13. The bride is the daughter of Col. Charles R. Mayo, Director of the Cavalry Board at Ft. Riley, Kans., and Mrs. Mayo, and grand-daughter of the late Col. John M. Stotsenburg, Cav. Lieutenant Winn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arvey Winn of Danville, Ken. He is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, New York, Class of 1934.

The Rev. James W. Brettman, Pastor of the Church of the Covenant, Junction City, Kans., officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The Maid of Honor was Miss Jane Stotsenburg Kromer, cousin of the bride. The best man was Lt. Robert G. Baker, Fourteenth Field Artillery, a classmate of the groom.

The ushers were Lieutenants James A. Costain, and Thomas C. Foote, Fourteenth FA, Charles W. Schnovel, Ninth Engineers, all classmates of the groom, and Lt. Charles M. Peeke, Fourteenth FA, Lt. Bogardus S. Cairns, Second Cavalry, and Lt. Lawrence E. Schlanser, Thirteenth Cavalry.

After the reception, Lieutenant and Mrs. Winn left for a short honeymoon. They will be at home in Quarters 3-A Carpenter Court about June 1, 1936.

The out of town guests included Mrs. Leon B. Kromer and Miss Jane Kromer, wife and daughter respectively of Maj. Gen. Leon B. Kromer, Chief of Cavalry, and Miss Mary Wilson of Baltimore, Md.

Personals

Maj. Leslie E. Bowman, QMC, USA, of the Army Industrial College is spending several weeks at the Martinique Hotel.

General John J. Pershing, general of the armies, has returned to Washington after spending some time in California and the Southwest.

1st Lt. Walter E. Kraus, FA, USA, and Mrs. Kraus have arrived at the Hotel Martinique, Washington, D. C., for a short visit before going to West Point for duty.

Mrs. Roosevelt and General John J. Pershing will be guests of honor at the garden party to be held at Walter Reed Hospital and Army Medical Center, Saturday, May 23, for the benefit of the memorial fund of the hospital.

Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis will tell fortunes. Mr. Robert Weston Ades will sketch the guests as they arrive and Mrs. Henry Rea will come from Pittsburgh to preside at the birthday cake table for the birthday anniversary of the Gray Ladies. Miss Helen Clifford and her committee will present the Junior League Marionettes, under the direction of Mrs. H. L. Rust.

Mme. Snelgoski, in Polish costume, will sell cigarettes and Mrs. Pilsen Warren, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Mrs. Royal Reynolds, Mrs. Hugh B. Hester and Mrs. George Dyer will style a fashion show at 5 o'clock in the formal garden, with the United States Army Band in attendance.

Mrs. Sherman I. Strong, Mrs. Clifford H. Perry, Mrs. Harry N. Fuller are in charge of tickets and Mrs. Victor N.

Meddis, of the bridge committee is in charge of reservations for tables.

Mrs. Mallan, wife of Maj. Daniel H. Mallan, VC, USA, has come to the Martinique in Washington, D. C., from Carlisle Barracks, for a weeks visit.

The Army and Navy Chapter gave a luncheon at the Army and Navy Club on May 11. The luncheon was followed by the May meeting which was presided over by the regent, Mrs. Charles W. Kutz.

The following members were elected to office for the coming year: Regent—Mrs. William F. Pearson, Vice-Regent—Mrs. Bruce L. Canaga, Chaplain—Mrs. John Walker Holcombe, Recording Secretary—Mrs. W. E. Pattison French, Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. John E. Hunt, Treasurer—Mrs. Hubert E. Padlock, Registrar—Mrs. George W. McIver, Historian—Mrs. William D. West.

Board members: Mrs. Paul S. Bond, Mrs. Godwin Ordway, Mrs. Charles T. Harris, Mrs. Henry Allen Stuart, Mrs. George R. Harrison, Delegates: Mrs. Fay B. Prickett, Miss Florence Wilcox, Mrs. Charles Keene, Madame Catecuzene-Grant.

Organization Activities

(Companies, troops, batteries, and other units are requested to address news of their activities for publication in this column to "Organization Activities, Army and Navy Journal, 1711 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C.")

Fort Davis, C. Z.—The Atlantic Motor Pool at Fort Davis, C. Z., get out a mimeographed newspaper called the "Gas Tank." "It is published Saturdays by and for the Motor Pool." In addition to the usual organization jokes and chatter, the "Gas Tank" carries some very substantial material of particular value to motor transport men, for instance a page of questions and answers on Engine Lubrication prepared at Holabird, in a recent issue.

The following paragraph is taken from the same issue:

"One of the planks for a new social order is abolition of the greeting 'Hello' and adoption of the word 'Peace.' We can see where it might work out all right in some circumstances: for instance, in meeting one of our creditors, whose steps we have been dodging for the past six months, we could very well avoid an otherwise painful scene and possibly an assault upon our pockets, by hollering 'Peace' two or three times, and turning the other way rapidly. He'd be at least, surprised enough to stay away until fully convinced of our sanity. But, if we saw one of those officers whose main claim to distinction is based on his strict disciplinarian instincts, and we greeted him with a discreet 'Peace,' the purpose of the league would certainly be defeated."

Capt. John J. Turner, QMC (FA), has commanded the Atlantic Motor Pool for the past two years, and will soon depart from Fort Davis for Fort McDowell, Calif.

29th Inf., Ft. Benning, Ga. — Headquarters Co. is proud of its representatives on the Infantry Rifle Team, Sgt. Frank Palmer and Corp. L. R. Isbill. The Company is also proud of its riders in the Post Horseshow. Heading the list was Corporal Edmunds, star horseman of Fort Benning and winner of four consecutive sweepstakes. C. G. Caldwell has graduated from the Horsehoer's School with honors.

Ft. Sill, Okla.—In the fourth and final contest of the present series of Informal Horse Shows held by the 18th Field Artillery here, Capt. and Mrs. A. P. Kitson walked off with first place honors in the Officers' and Ladies' Jumping events, also winning first place in the Pairs of Hacks event. 1st. Lieut. Mason H. Lucas in addition to taking second place in the Officers' Jumping, came to the fore to win the Regimental Trophy, presented to high point rider of the series. Corp. Cato won first and second honors in the Enlisted Men's Jumping.

25th Inf., Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.—The

Twenty-Fifth United States Infantry observed its sixty-seventh anniversary celebration of its organization Tuesday, May 12. The highlights of the celebration were an address by the Regimental Commander, Col. John F. Franklin, USA, Inf., and a one minute silent tribute given to deceased members of the Regiment at the Regimental assembly at 9 a. m.

There was boxing at 11 a. m., special holiday dinners at all organizations at 1 p. m., a baseball game at 2 p. m. and a Regimental dance at 9 p. m.

29th Inf., Ft. Benning, Ga.—M. Sgt. George R. Still, Service Company, 29th Infantry, has been placed on the retired list, effective April 30, after having completed thirty years service, according to general orders issued by order of Col. Asa L. Singleton, commanding officer of that regiment.

He was serving as first sergeant of Headquarters Company of 29th Infantry when war was declared, and shortly thereafter he was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry. Upon receiving his commission he served as an instructor in the Second Officer's Training Camp at Ft. Snelling, Minn., and did so well on his new assignment that he stepped up to a first lieutenantcy and to captaincy in less than five months from the day he first donned the leather puttees and Sam Brown belt.

He was then assigned to duty with the 41st Infantry at Ft. Crook, Neb., prior to receiving his most interesting assignment during his army career; as liaison officer and personnel officer on transport duty, serving on the Levia-than, which, during the time he served on her, brought back to the United States from France General John J. Pershing, under whom he had previously served at Ft. William McKinley near Manila many years before. He then went on the "Pocahontas" along with an artillery column, surrounded by navy men and marines, returning German prisoners to Holland, and during the two and a half months on this detail he visited Rotterdam, Antwerp, Southampton and Brest.

He was discharged as a captain in October, 1919, and in December of the same year he reenlisted for duty with the 29th Infantry.

Sergeant Still plans to spend his well earned retirement in Anderson, Ala.

QM Detachment, Ft. Benning, Ga.—M. Sgt. Richard L. Montague, Quartermaster Corps Detachment, Ft. Benning, has been placed upon the retired list, effective April 30, after having completed thirty years and six months service.

According to information received from Maj. George R. Ford, Commissary Officer, under whom Sergeant Montague served, the devotion to duty which has characterized Sergeant Montague's military service is exemplified by his last mission; that of setting up in the Ft. Benning Quartermaster Commissary and Sales Store, under the direction of the Quartermaster, the new system of Sales and Accounting recently authorized by the War Department.

For this purpose Sergeant Montague voluntarily stayed beyond the time for his retirement approximately six months ago. Major Ford states that in this undertaking he showed an ability, an open-minded freedom from prejudice and a willingness to accept innovation and improvement. To this, as to former lines of duty, Sergeant Montague brought the traits of mind and spirit which has given the Ft. Benning Commissary first place for size and volume of business and reputation as one of the most modern of similar military stores within the continental limits of the United States. The same qualities will cause Sergeant Montague to be remembered by superiors and associates for his unsparing diligence and steadfast loyalty.

Sergeant Montague will make his retirement home in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Medical Department

BY MAJ. GEN. C. R. REYNOLDS
Surgeon General of the Army

MANY changes have taken place in the Medical Department since the World War. Some of these changes were due to lessons learned in that conflict while others were due to the advances made in scientific medicine during and since that time.

The Medical specialty, Aviation Medicine, was a direct outgrowth of the war. The early unfortunate experiences of the Allies had caused enormous wastage and focused on it the attention of every one concerned. In September, 1917 a Medical Research Board was appointed and a laboratory was established at Mineola, Long Island. The instruction of flight surgeons followed and at first only three subjects were taught, namely, Selection of the Flyer, Classification of the Flyer, and Maintenance of Efficiency. This laboratory later developed into the present School of Aviation Medicine located at Randolph Field, Texas, where a faculty of qualified Flight Surgeons are engaged in carrying on well organized courses in medical subjects in their special relation to Aviation Medicine. The need for research work over and above that capable of being carried on at various fields and at the School of Aviation Medicine led to the establishment of The Physiological Research Laboratory at Wright Field in 1935. At the present time there are approximately 35 research projects being worked upon which pertain to the physical and mental problems of flying personnel.

The Medical Department Professional Service Schools are now all located in Washington at The Army Medical Center. Several types of courses are given. A basic graduate course is given each year for the purpose of amplifying the training of newly appointed medical and veterinary officers in those professional subjects requiring particular emphasis in the military service. Advanced graduate courses are given to older officers of the Medical, Dental, and Veterinary Corps in the various professional specialties. Courses for the training of enlisted laboratory and X-ray technicians, dental technicians, and veterinary technicians are an important part of the curriculum. These schools are ideally located at the Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., immediately adjacent to Walter Reed General Hospital, where a wealth of clinical material is available for instructional purposes.

The Medical Field Service School is located at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania. This post has been a military station since Revolutionary days, except for a period when it was the home of the famous Carlisle Indian School. This excellent school, established in 1920, is for the purpose of training Medical Department personnel in the principles and methods of medical field service. The basic course is a continuation of the initial training of newly appointed Medical Department officers begun at the Professional Service Schools. Instruction is given in all of the aspects of medical field service, field sanitation, administration and activities connected with training. An advanced course is conducted for older officers to fit them for the higher administrative, tactical, and staff duties pertaining to medical field service of the division, corps, and military and technical subjects, and the art of instructing, administering, and training Medical Department troops. A special extension (correspondence) course is also a feature of this school.

In 1920 a Medical Department Equipment laboratory was established at Carlisle for the purpose of improving field equipment in the light of lessons learned during the World War. The first work accomplished was the improvement in the individual equipment and the standardization of various chests used in the field. This was followed by the development of Battalion and Regimental Aid transportation equipment. Various types of transportation both for material and personnel have been the subject of study. An example of this is the improvement in the litter, the first means of transportation in the front lines. Old litters were made of ash, which was becoming difficult to obtain, so a new litter with metal side bars was devised which proved not only more durable but weighed ten pounds less than the old one.

A new type of field ambulance was developed at the Medical Department Equipment Laboratory at Carlisle Barracks in 1932. Procurement in an emergency was the governing factor and it is believed that this has been accomplished. The basic and most valuable feature of this ambulance is an insert which can be installed in the body of a light commercial truck of the Ford or Chevrolet types. This insert provides seats for sitting patients and straps for the suspension of litters. About a thousand of these ambulances have been distributed for the use of the CCC, which has provided an excellent opportunity for field tests, and is a valuable potential reserve. Most of our medical units have also been equipped with this new ambulance.

It is the policy of The Surgeon General to modernize hospital equipment throughout the Army. Appropriations for this purpose have been generous so that this policy is being rapidly carried out. The objective aimed at is to fit each hospital so that as much definitive work as possible may be performed, reserving the General Hospitals for the more serious and special cases.

Many advances have been made in hospital construction, so that buildings have had to be added to and replaced. Due to new developments in medical treatment, it has been necessary to purchase new apparatus and space has had to be provided for such things as hydrotherapy, physiotherapy, basal metabolism, electrocardiograph, etc. During the past few years a new hospital meeting all modern requirements has been built at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and another is under construction at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Many other Army hospitals have been added to and a number of smaller station hospitals constructed.

Walter Reed Hospital, with a bed capacity of 1,000 is one of the outstanding General Hospitals of this country, having a deservedly high reputation for the efficient manner in which it is administered, the excellence of its facilities, the attention devoted to the comfort and welfare of its patients and the high standing and competency of its professional personnel. Hospital training courses are given here in Dietetics, Physiotherapy, and Anesthesia.

One of the important functions of the Staff of the Army Medical School is to initiate and put into effect the investigation of research problems, the solution of which may prove to be of value to the Army in disease prevention and health conservation, to stimulate, supervise, foster and act as a clearing house for the investigation of such problems in the field, to initiate and standardize new technical procedures for use as existing technical procedures, to investigate new equipment and material to determine its practicability and adaptability for use in the Army, to act as technical adviser to The Surgeon General in the preparation of specifications for certain supplies and equipment and to examine representative samples of supplies delivered to determine whether they meet the specifications under which purchased.

The Medical Department of the Army is best known to medical and scientific workers in this country and elsewhere throughout the world through the contributions its members have made to the cause of preventive medicine and its allied subjects, and one of the principal objectives of those responsible for the destiny of the Medical Department always has been and continues to be to stimulate scientific research and investigation.

The pioneer work of Beaumont in the investigation of the processes of digestion of food in the stomach, the work of the Walter Reed Research Board in solving the method of transmission of yellow fever, and the work of Gorgas in sanitation and disease control in Panama during the period of the construction of the Panama Canal are typical examples of the many contributions made to scientific medicine by members of the Medical Corps in the past and are illustrative of the wide range of research activities undertaken (physiology, practical research in disease control and the practical application of the principles of sanitation).

During recent years, through the organization of Research Boards and the prosecution of fundamental investigations at the Army Medical School and elsewhere, the members of the Medical Department have continued and are continuing to add to our knowledge of scientific medicine both directly and indirectly.

In 1911 Russell and his co-workers initiated, in the Army, the use of a vaccine prepared from typhoid organisms for the purpose of protecting military personnel from attacks of typhoid fever. The results obtained were extraordinarily good. For the five year period immediately preceding the introduction of this protective measure it was the usual experience in the Army that 390 of every 100,000 individuals in the military service were treated for typhoid fever in military hospitals each year. For the five year period immediately subsequent to the introduction of this protective measure the comparable number of individuals treated for typhoid each year dropped to 15, and these low rates have continued to be the experience in the Army. In 1935 there were only 8 cases of typhoid in the Regular Army at home and abroad.

During recent years much has been added to our knowledge of the behavior of bacterial organisms under varying environmental and other conditions, and about a year and a half ago the technical staff on duty at the Army Medical School undertook a somewhat extensive investigation of various strains of the typhoid organism in the hope that as a result of such experimental work it might be possible for us to still further increase the protective value of our anti-typhoid vaccine.

This experimental work has not yet been completed but the results obtained so far suggest very definitely that it may be possible to still further enhance the protective value of our vaccine. It is hoped that this initial investigative project will be completed by the summer months of 1936 and that by late fall of this year it will be possible to distribute to the Army a typhoid vaccine that gives promise of affording even better protection against typhoid than the one now in use.

The commissioned personnel of the Medical Department, more particularly the Staff at the Army Medical School and the members of Medical Department Research Boards, during recent years, have contributed much to our knowledge of tropical disease. The fundamental work of Col. C. F. Craig on malaria and the protozoal dysenteries has been outstanding. Col. E. B. Vedder, through his contributions to our knowledge of vitamins and their relationship to diseases of the so-called food deficiency type — such as beriberi — has made it possible to greatly reduce the occurrence of beriberi in the general populations of the Philippine Islands.

A Research Board (Siler, Hall, and Hitchens) working in the Philippines succeeded in demonstrating, through experiments with volunteers consisting of military personnel, that dengue fever is transmitted in essentially the same manner and by the same species of mosquitoes as is yellow fever. This experimental work was confirmed by members of a subsequent Research Board (Maj. J. S. Simmons, Maj. Paul A. Schule, Maj. F. H. K. Reynolds, and Maj. J. H. St. John), who through their investigations added still further details to our knowledge of the mechanism of the transmission of dengue.

A member of a Research Board working in the Philippine Islands (Lt. Col. R. A. Kelsor, VC) succeeded in demonstrating the mechanism through which Surra is transmitted from animal to animal. This disease is very fatal to horses and mules, the organism producing it (a trypanosome) is harbored by the carabao without symptoms, and the disease is transmitted by a species of fly.

The Army performed pioneer work and has been one of the leading influences in the promotion of physical examinations as a means of health conservation. Twenty-eight years ago the Army authorities initiated the annual physical examination of officers for the purpose of detecting and providing for the alleviation of correctable defects. This movement has proven not only to be of great value to Army personnel but has also played an important role in the progress of civilian health work along similar lines.

The virus now generally used for protection against smallpox, to be effective to the maximum degree, must be kept at low temperatures until actually applied to human beings. Under conditions that exist in the Army it is not always practicable to constantly keep it at a desirable temperature. It, therefore, is desirable to develop a type of vaccine virus that will retain its potency if and when exposed to the normal atmospheric temperatures encountered in temperate and tropical climates throughout the year.

During recent years scientific workers have succeeded in cultivating this virus in pure culture, thus obviating the danger of introducing pus producing bacteria into the skin when the individual is vaccinated. Such a type of vaccine reduces, or rather, practically eliminates the "sore arms"—of a severe type so frequently encountered after the successful vaccination of non-immunes.

This type of vaccine also retains its potency when exposed to adverse temperature conditions for a much longer period of time than does the glycerinated vaccine virus ordinarily used.

For several months two members of the Staff at the Army Medical School (Capt. Don Longfellow and Capt. William S. Stone) have been cultivating this virus, investigating its potency under varying temperature conditions, using it on limited numbers of individuals, experimenting with types of containers that theoretically might be suitable for use for distribution to the Army, and developing methods of storage.

It is hoped that as a result of this work it may be possible, eventually, to develop a more satisfactory and more effective vaccine virus for distribution to the Army.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the most widely adopted method of rendering water supplies potable by chemical means, in this country and elsewhere, is by the use of chlorine. But few persons are aware of the fact that the first practical method of sterilizing water supplies with chlorine was developed by a member of the Medical Corps of the Army, Brig. Gen. Carl R. Darnall. The application of this method for water treatment in the field was further advanced by the introduction of the present water sterilizing bag by Col. W. J. L. Lyster, Medical Corps, USA.

For many years the Medical Corps of the Army has had under investigation the development of a chemical substance for the sterilization of drinking water for use by small military units on duty in the field, and out of these investigations came the use of ordinary calcium hypochlorite (bleach), (distributed in sealed ampules) for use in company water bags. During the World War and subsequent thereto it became evident that this hypochlorite rapidly deteriorated when held in storage, particularly so in hot climates. Through the co-operative effort on the part of the Medical Department, Quartermaster Department, Chemical Warfare Service and commercial firms it has been possible to develop a much more stable chlorine compound known as High Test Hypochlorite (HTH) and this is the product now being supplied the Army for use in the field. Investigative work on this subject is being continued at the Army Medical School and at the Medical Field Service School at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, with a view to still further improving methods for the sterilization of water in the field.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

P. W. Chapman, who directed the design of the S. S. Washington and S. S. Manhattan, visited Washington this week with a model of one of the two ships with which he contemplates the co-ordination of railway, highway and airway with seaway travel to put the American Merchant Marine ahead of that of other nations. The ships he proposes to have the Government construct would be the biggest and fastest ever built.

The proposed ships would have the following characteristics: length, 1,250 feet; beam, 144 feet; draft, 36 feet, 6 inches; displacement, 100,000 tons; cruising speed, 34 knots; emergency speed, 38 knots; power capacity 380,000 s.h.p., of which about 268,000 horsepower would be normal use; there would be nine cabins in addition to other recreation and service decks above the water line, and above the top deck would be an airplane field base of about 140 feet in width and 800 feet in length and unobstructed when in actual use. As Army transports, the ships would be capable of carrying about 20,000 troops.

Consolidating the best features of luxurious liners and modern cabin ships, Chapman has devised what he terms a "popular" ship. Such ships, he says, have the patronage not only of the accustomed seafaring traveler but also of the majority of people to whom acceptable accommodations in ocean travel have been prohibitive. High speed and a "pay-load" can not be combined in any ship of small dimensions, said Chapman.

The ships which he proposes to construct would cross the ocean in four days, would accommodate 10,000 passengers, and would also provide a uniformity of service, except for the choice of where and when to dine. The rate of ocean fare per cabin room, excluding dining services, would be a uniform price of $60 per passenger one-way single occupancy, or $100 for double occupancy.

The Medical Department

vention of venereal diseases in the Army always has been of the utmost importance because of the influences of such diseases on non-effective rates and the serious disabilities that so frequently result from them. Prior to the World War certain control measures were put into effect that resulted in marked curtailment in the occurrence of such diseases. Subsequent to the World War these measures were continued and others were added. It was recognized, however, that the problem of the control of this group of diseases could not be accomplished except through cooperative effort on the part of both the Medical Department and Commanders of troops of all grades. Cooperation on the part of officers of all grades in command of troops was sought and obtained through the issuance of administrative regulations and instructions.

That the various control measures introduced from time to time have been effective is evident when it is realized that in 1918 the admission rate for venereal diseases in the Army was 90 per 1,000 of strength and that by 1934 the comparable rate had been reduced to 34.

The Medical Department of the Army recognizes and appreciates the fact that no such excellent results could have been attained during recent years except for the cooperation given and interest shown by line officers of all grades.

About a year and a half ago the Medical Department Research Board, formerly operating in the Philippine Islands, was transferred to the Canal Zone, Panama, and the personnel now on duty with the Board is engaged in the investigation of a number of problems, particularly with relation to the control and prevention of malaria. Within the past six weeks a member of that Board (Maj. J. S. Simmons), through transmission experiments from man to mosquito and back to man, has demonstrated that a prevailing species of the Anopheles mosquito (A. punctimacula) not heretofore proven to be a carrier of the malaria parasites, is in fact a transmitting agent for the parasites.

Any advance made in protecting and conserving the health of troops is applicable to a greater or less extent in civil life. Not infrequently, health measures developed by the Medical Department of the Army have proven of great value to the general public. This is perhaps true to a greater degree of health work than of any other of the activities of the Army. An example of this is seen as a result of the discovery of the method of transmission of yellow fever. Prior to the time that the mosquito was definitely convicted as the transmitting agent, yellow fever invaded the Eastern Seaboard at frequent intervals, killing thousands of persons. Because no one knew how the disease was contracted, shipping was subjected to long periods of quarantine, and in some instances ports were closed, business was at a standstill, and thousands of dollars were spent in fighting an enemy which would remain unconquered until non-immunes were exhausted or until cold weather closed the campaign.

The Selection System

selection boards from considering officers' medical records. It seems, however, that it would be better to defer action on them until next Winter and then take them up in connection with the whole problem.

"I believe that is a good idea," Chairman Vinson said, "Hearings on the subject are justified and would be of great benefit to the Navy. However, I don't think there is much chance of putting through a real reorganization over the opposition of the bureau chiefs."

Earlier in the week the question of a committee study of personnel and administration was brought up at a House naval subcommittee meeting, with Representative Maas and Representative Colgate Darden, Dem. of Va. both favoring such a study at the next Congress.

Senator Walsh, acting chairman of the Senate Naval Committee during the illness of the late Senator Park Trammell and his successor in the important post, in discussing selection this week, said:

"The most you can say for the selection system is that it is preferable to the old system of seniority. It is passing through an experimental stage and if not successful something else will have to be substituted. To have it succeed it is of the utmost importance that selection boards be composed of men of outstanding qualifications and men who are as free as humanly possible from personal prejudices and are capable of banishing all favoritism.

"The increase in the number of retired officers of both the Army and the Navy is becoming more and more a serious problem. There is a limit, in my judgment, to which the American people are willing to go in the matter of retired pensions and we should be careful not to reach that limit.

"I cannot see the justification of giving retired pay to a young lieutenant who is eliminated from the active list because of inefficiency. A distinction should be made between the officers not selected for promotion because of inefficiency and those not selected because of the limited number of officers who can be promoted. Some way should be devised to keep the latter in the Service and it is to be hoped that the General Board, which has been studying the problem, will find a satisfactory solution."

Report Naval Treaty

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday voted to report favorably the Naval Treaty negotiated and signed at London this year. It was stated the measure probably will be taken up by the Senate, Monday, May 18.

Financial Digest

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve bank credit outstanding during the week ended May 6 as reported by the Federal Reserve banks was $2,477,000,000, an increase of $4,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $6,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1935.

On May 6 total Reserve bank credit amounted to $2,478,000,000, an increase of $6,000,000 for the week. This increase corresponds with increases of $53,000,000 in money in circulation and $26,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and a decrease of $4,000,000 in Treasury and national bank currency, offset in part by an increase of $27,000,000 in monetary gold stock and decreases of $33,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $17,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. Member bank reserve balances on May 6 were estimated to be approximately $2,700,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

Diphtheria Toxoid

A marked advance by science in its fight against diphtheria has been brought about within the last three or four years. It is the newly perfected toxoid which is now available at naval hospitals and out-patient departments for the immunization of children against diphtheria. The toxoid is known as alum precipitate, and it is a definite advance over the old toxine and anti-toxine injections. Also there is less danger of reaction from the new toxoid and it can be administered with only one or two injections, whereas the anti-toxine and toxine injections had to be given from three to five times and often there was a reaction which made children sick. The new toxoid is reported to afford protection against diphtheria for a period of five years.

Diphtheria is one of the most dreadful diseases, being among the first five largest causes of child death. However, since the wide-spread use of anti-toxine and toxoid this disease has resulted in virtual conquest of diphtheria.

Navy Dental Officers to Lunch

All active and reserve dental officers of the United States Navy attending the American Dental Association Convention at San Francisco in July are invited to a luncheon and sightseeing trip to the U. S. Receiving Ship on Yerba Buena Island in San Francisco Bay, Monday, July 13. Boats will leave Pier 14 in San Francisco at 10:30 A. M.

This trip will afford an unusual opportunity of viewing the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge during its construction; a bird's eye view of the reclamation project for the San Francisco World's Fair; and a visit to the battle-ship that will be in the harbor at that time.

Those desiring to attend please notify Lt. Comdr. Edward B. Howell, (DC), USN, U. S. Receiving Ship, San Francisco, Calif.

Miami Air Base

The House of Representatives on May 14 approved the conference report on the bill to provide a naval air base near Miami, Fla.

Honor Marine Retirement

San Diego, Calif.—Sgt. Maj. James R. Scott, retiring after 30 years' service, was honored by a parade here May 1. The parade was reviewed by Brig. Gen. Douglas C. McDougal, USMC, and Col. P. H. Torrey, USMC. The regiment stood at attention while General McDougal read the War Department order retiring Sergeant Major Scott.

Navy CPO Stagnation

With the passage of the naval appropriation bill by the Senate without increasing the funds for pay and allowances of enlisted men, stagnation in petty officer promotions next year appears inevitable.

The House cut $949,103 from the budget estimates for enlisted pay on the basis of a table furnished to the subcommittee on naval appropriations last year. This table gave the distribution of men in grades at considerable variance with the then existing distribution and that planned for next year. It provided for a smaller percentage of men in the second and third pay grades and as a result there are nearly 1,200 petty officers, first class, now in excess of the number the distribution for next year will allow.

Informed of the erroneous table, the Senate Appropriations Committee was told by Navy Department officials that unless the $949,103 cut out by the House was restored beginning the first of July there will be more men in the second pay grade than there is money to pay them and that promotion of enlisted men will be stopped until the excess is wiped out. The money was not restored by the Senate and although the bill is not yet passed this appropriation cannot be changed by the conferees. Therefore, it appears that the expected stagnation in enlisted promotion is inevitable.

In presenting the matter to the Senate committee, Navy officials declared that "it was something of a mystery" as to what Navy Department office compiled the erroneous table.
